FREDERICK PLEADS GUILTY; TAKES 10 YEARS

CANADIANS SAVE DAY NEAR YPRES; BATTLE CONTINUES

By Associated Press.

LONDON, April 24.—The War Office today gave out the following official note:

"The fight for the ground into which the Germans penetrated between Steenstraate and Langmarck (north of Ypres) continues. The loss of this part of the line laid bare the left of the Canadian division, which was forced to fall back in order to keep in touch with the right of the neighboring troops.

"In the rear of the latter had been four Canadian 4.7 guns, which thus passed into the hands of the enemy. But some hours later the Canadians made a most brilliant and successful advance, recapturing these guns and taking a considerable number of German prisoners, including a Colonel.

"The Canadians had many casualties, but their gallantry and determination undoubtedly saved the situation. Their conduct has been magnificent throughout."

Battle Line 10 Miles Long.

The battle front now the scene of a series of engagements recalling the fighting of last October is roughly 10 miles long from the region of Bixschoote in the north to St. Eloi in the south.

Driven from Hill No. 60 to the south of Ypres and failing to retake it by a counter attack, the Germans launched a sudden advance northeast of the town and, after stupifying and killing men in the first trenches with deadly gases, according to British official reports, they drove a wedge of infantry forward, forcing the French and Belgians back toward and, at some points, apparently across the Yser (Ypres), Canal, a maneuver which at the same time compelled the British line north of Ypres to fall back to conform with the French.

Although the advance of the Germans was considerable, extending, according to Berlin dispatches, over a front of five miles, French, Belgian and British forces—the French occupying the center, the Belgians the left and the British the right of the line—immediately initiated a counter attack, the result of which was to compel the Germans to give up some of the ground they had taken and force them in a northeasterly direction toward Langemarck, from which place the attack started.

Some of the London newspapers today characterize this German rush as another attempt to break through to Calais, and some estimates say they have 500,000 men available for this effort.

By this time the British are presumably well strengthened and have consolidated their position on Hill No. 60. The hardest fighting, consequently is expected north of Ypres.

Asphyxiating Gas Produced.

Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces, communicated the following under yesterday's date regarding the fighting near Ypres. Thursday evening the enemy developed an attack on the French troops on our left in the neighborhood of Bixschoote and Langemarck on the north of the Ypres salient.

"This attack was preceded by a heavy bombardment, the enemy at the same time making use of a large number of appliances for the production of asphyxiating gas. The quantity produced indicates long and deliberate preparation for the employment of devices contrary to the terms of The Hague convention to which the enemy subscribed.

"The false statement made by the Germans a week ago, to the effect that we are using such gases, is now explained. It obviously was an effort to diminish neutral criticism in advance.

"During the night the French had to retire from the gas zone, overwhelmed by the fumes. They have fallen back to the canal in the neighborhood of Boesinghe. Our front remains intact, except on the extreme left, where the troops have had to readjust their line in order to conform with the French line.

"Two attacks delivered during the night on our trenches east of Ypres

NAVY AIRMAN GOES UP 10,000 FEET IN HYDROAEROPLANE

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 24.—A new world's record altitude flight of 10,000 feet in a hydroaeroplane was made here late yesterday by Lieut. P. N. L. Bellinger at the Naval Aeronautical Station.

In one hour and 20 minutes Lieut. Bellinger made his ascent, which, so far as official data shows, never has been equaled. He took 16 minutes gliding back to earth. On June 13, 1913, Lieut. Bellinger made the best previous record for an altitude flight in a hydroaeroplane at Annapolis, when he climbed to 6200 feet.

POKES A WHALE WITH HIS OAR

Boatman Thought It Was Rock; Barely Escapes Monster's Tail.

SANTA BARBARA, April 24.—When Frank Hamer, New York tourist, fishing in the Channel today, poked his oar against what he thought must be a slimy black rock protruding slightly above the waves, he turned loose a geyser and rowed for his life to escape from what for a time looked to him like certain death.

The seeming rock, transformed by the poke of the oar into a living, moving mass, soon proved to be an immense whale and Hamer barely got beyond range in time to escape the powerful slashing of the moster's tail as it dived into the depths of the Channel. The water spout thrown by the whale soaked Hamel to the skin, waterlogging his boat. He was rescued by fishermen, who caught his frantic signal for help.

TIRE'S BURSTING BETRAYS THIEF

Negro Giving Companion Joy Ride in Ben Schuline's Car Arrested.

The reserves of the Magnolia Avenue Police Station investigating a loud report about 3:30 o'clock this morning, found eight negroes inspecting a bursted automobile tire at Grand and Halliday avenues. The machine's ownership was traced to Ben M. Schuline of 4160 Delmar boulevard, whose garage was broken into about 10 o'clock last night.

One of the negroes, Jerre Tull, who gave his address as 4111 Washington boulevard, admitted he had taken the car and said he was giving his companions a "joy ride." He was arrested.

DRILL FRAME HITS AN ELECTRIC WIRE, FOREMAN KILLED

High Tension Current Passes Through the Body of George Hickman, 43 Years Old.

AT WORK ON BIG SEWER

Survived by a Widow and Seven Children Who Reside in Bourbon, Mo.

George Hickman, 43 years old, a foreman for the Sewell Construction Co., was shocked to death by electricity at Chouteau and Spring avenue at 8:30 o'clock this morning when superintending the hoisting of a drill from the big Mill Creek storm sewer, which is being constructed for the city.

As the drill was being raised from the excavation its metal framework came in contact with a high tension electric light wire.

Current Passes Through Body.

Hickman had his hand on the framework, and the current passed through his body. He fell, and lay motionless on the ground. Two physicians said he had been killed instantly.

Ray Thompson of 3814 St. Ferdinand avenue told policemen that he and another workman were raising the drill under Hickman's direction. The drill is used in boring holes to supply air to the men working in the sewer excavation 50 feet below the ground. It is moved from place to place along the route of the big sewer.

Thompson and the other workman were holding guy ropes and Hickman was steadying the framework of the drill as it was withdrawn from the ground.

Extends 50 Feet Above Ground.

When the drill reached the surface, its upper end extended nearly fifty feet into the air. The work of raising it was almost completed when the accident occurred.

Hickman's home was in Bourbon, Mo., where his widow and seven children live. Since work on the big sewer was started he had been stopping at 2747 Shenandoah avenue.

LOSES THREE OF HIS FOUR SONS IN FRENCH ARMY

PARIS, April 24.—Three of the four sons of Charles Legrand, who entered the army, have been killed in action. M. Legrand, who was formerly president of the Chamber of Commerce and was active in the project for exchanges of commercial students between Harvard University and the French Commercial University, was notified today that the third one of his sons had been killed.

SAW NO BABY WITH "MRS. CAMPBELL," DOCTOR TESTIFIES

CONTESTANTS' CASE ENDS

Defense to Be Resumed Monday —Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Burkham in Court.

Dr. Walter Franklin Chappell was called to the Grand Union Hotel, New York, to attend a woman purporting to be Mrs. Florence Campbell, several days after Mrs. Campbell is supposed to have been removed from that hotel to the Grand Hotel, according to Chappell's deposition, on behalf of the defense read yesterday to the jury in the Campbell will case, in Judge Kinsey's court. The doctor on cross-examination, said he saw no baby there.

The position of the defense in the case, in which the parentage of Lois Ann Burkham is the issue, is that the child was born at the Grand Union Hotel on March 17, 1893, and that Mrs. Campbell and the child were moved the next day to the Grand Hotel. The contention of the contestants is that the child was born at the Grand Union Hotel to Mrs. Oscar Hicks and given to Mrs. Campbell, who took it to the Grand Hotel, leaving Mrs. Hicks at the Grand Union. Mrs. Hicks, the contestants allege, was at the Grand Union Hotel under the name of Mrs. Campbell.

Identifies Dr. Smith's Handwriting.

Dr. Chappell's deposition was taken by the defense for the purpose of verifying the handwriting of Dr. A. H. Smith, his deceased partner, who made out a birth certificate in which Mr. and Mrs. Campbell were named as the parents of the child. Chappell identified Smith's handwriting in the birth certificate, and in a letter bearing his signature, which purports to have been sent to Mrs. Campbell after her return to St. Louis, giving her directions about caring for her health.

It was on cross-examination by L. Frank Ottofy, attorney for the contestants, that Dr. Chappell stated that a call came one day from the Grand Union Hotel for Dr. Smith, who had attended a woman in confinement there several days before. Dr. Smith was not in, and Dr. Chappell answered the call.

He found a woman in bed in a room at the hotel. He saw no baby.

Chappell was asked if he had ever seen Mrs. Campbell. He answered: "Well, I don't know," and explained that a woman had called on him a short time before his deposition was taken and said she was Mrs. Campbell and asked him if he recognized her. He told her that he did not.

"You won't say that the woman who called on you was this Mrs. Campbell who was there in bed?" he was asked. His answer was "No."

He was unable to remember the year, but recalled the circumstance because it was the only confinement case that was attended by Dr. Smith at the Grand Union. He was unable to say that the woman was Mrs. Campbell.

Contestants' Case Closes.

The contestants' case was closed shortly after noon yesterday, rather sooner than was expected, but it is expected that considerable testimony will be offered by Attorney Ottofy in rebuttal.

The crowd that filled the courtroom, hoping to hear the testimony of Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Burkham, was disappointed. Both were in the courtroom for the first time and attracted a great deal of notice. Mrs. Campbell's striking black attire emphasized the attractions which she retains in spite of her advanced years. Mrs. Burkham also wore a black gown, so fashioned as to give her a touch of girlishness. They sat among the crowd of lawyers and agents for the defense and during intermissions chatted rather vivaciously with acquaintances. They were accompanied by Mrs. R. Graham Frost and a nurse and Elzey Burkham, husband of Mrs. Burkham.

No Demurrer Filed.

It was considered significant by those who have followed the case that the defense, at the close of the contestants' testimony, did not file a demurrer and ask that the Judge take the case from the jury and dismiss it. This is usually done when the defense takes the position that there has not been sufficient evidence to warrant submission of the issue to the jury. While such a motion is seldom granted, it is frequently filed as a formality and as an indication that the defense does not think that a case of any strength has been made.

Morton Jourdan, for the defense, introduced the birth certificate. Ottofy objected that it was admissable only as showing that a birth occurred at the time and place indicated and not as tending to establish who the parents were, but it was read to the jury.

There was no session of the court today, but the taking of testimony for the defense will be resumed at 10 a. m. Monday, when it is expected that Mrs. Campbell will take the stand.

OFFICIAL INDICTED, FORMER DUQUOIN BANK CLERK HELD

Grand Jury Returns True Bills Against Two Men After Closing of Horn Institution.

DUQUOIN, Ill., April 24.—Following the return of indictments by the grand jury against two men in connection with the failure of the Duquoin Bank of Henry, Frank Wells, a former employe of the bank, was arrested today. He was later released under a $500 bond. Wells is secretary of the Duquoin School Board and special collector of public improvement assessments in the city.

Fifteen indictments charging embezzlements and working of a confidence game were returned against an official of the bank, but he has not been arrested. The bank closed last December on the day that Henry Horn Sr., owner of the bank, died. It has never reopened.

During the investigation by the grand jury of the Duquoin City Court, a summons for Henry Horn Jr., cashier of the bank, to appear as a witness, was issued, but court officers reported that they were unable to find him.

Following the death of Henry Horn Sr., the founder and sole owner of the bank, and the refusal of two of his sons to act as executors of the estate, W. W. Parks, a son-in-law, and the Rev. Father C. H. Eschmann, pastor of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, of which Horn was a member, took possession of the estate.

Their report, made public Feb. 5, showed that only $1654.01 remained in the bank, although the deposits and other claims against the estate amounted to more than $300,000.

Among the assets was an item marked "disputed overdraft" for $89,045.45. The assets were listed by the appraisers at $404,706.02, but many of the notes and securities were found to be of doubtful value.

The disputed overdrafts, according to the report, consisted of two items which were charged against the account of Henry Horn Sr. a few days before his death, although he was unable to leave his bed at the time and had not been actively in charge of the bank's affairs for several months.

Rumored Demand on China Asks for Satisfactory Reply Within 3 Days.

HONOLULU, T. H., April 24.—An ultimatum demanding a satisfactory reply within three days to the demand of Japan on China has been sent by the Japanese Cabinet to Eki Hioki, the Japanese Minister at Pekin.

It is to be delivered to the representatives of China at the negotiations according to a dispatch from Tokio to the Hawaii Shinpo, a Japanese newspaper here.

GRANTING OF JURY FOR THAW TO BE APPEALED BY STATE

N. Y. Attorney-General Holds Judge Hendrick Exceeded His Power.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Harry K. Thaw, who went to sleep in the Tombs prison last night elated by his belief that he had won his long fight for a jury trial to test his sanity, awoke today to learn that he must await a decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court before such a hearing would be certain.

This new check in his attempt legally to obtain his freedom from the Matteawan Asylum to which Justice Page had ordered him returned, was due to the announcement by Attorney-General Woodbury that the State would make application to the Appellate Division for a writ of prohibition against the order for a jury trial granted yesterday by Justice Hendrick. Woodbury's determination was made public after Thaw had retired for the night. The Attorney-General contends that Justice Hendrick does not possess power to grant a jury trial on the writ of habeas corpus obtained by Thaw.

The hearing before a jury has been set for May 17, but it was considered likely that it would be postponed by the State's appeal.

STARTED TO PRISON IMMEDIATELY, 4 HOURS AFTER BEING INDICTED

Appears in Court, Leaning on Arm of Lawyer, and Body Shakes When Sentence Is Passed.

"THIS IS PRETTY HARD," PRISONER TELLS DOCTORS

Plea Entered on Charge of Forging Deed of Trust Sold to Stenographer—First Degree Forgery Also Charged to Crone in Partial Grand Jury Report.

A. H. Frederick entered Judge Jones' courtroom at 12:30 p. m. today and pleaded guilty to one of four indictments charging first degree forgery. Sentence was passed upon him at once, the penalty being fixed at 10 years in the penitentiary.

Frederick was taken in custody by Sheriff Dickmann and left the courtroom in charge of Chief Deputy Sheriff Joseph Dickmann Jr., accompanied by Selden P. Spencer. They sped away in an automobile, and it was expected that the deputy and his prisoner would board a train at Union Station at 2 p. m. Instead they went to Tower Grove Station.

They were accompanied by Spencer, Henry Kortjohn Jr., Frederick's attorney, and a man named Wines, a neighbor of Frederick, when they arrived at the station. They went to the platform as the train approached and when it stopped they made a rush for it.

Spencer collided with a photographer who was trying to take a snapshot of Frederick and then apologized for his awkwardness. The others surrounded Frederick and increased the photographer's difficulties.

Frederick hurried along with considerable agility and was the first to climb on the train. He did not tur to shake hands with his friends, but they patted him on the back and shouted "good-by." Dickman climbed up after him and they disappeared in the train.

The four indictments against Frederick were returned in Judge Jones' court at 10 a. m.

Leans on Arm of Lawyer.

It was not generally known that Frederick would enter a plea so soon after the return of the indictments and the courtroom was not crowded when he walked into the main entrance and down the aisle, leaning on the arm of his attorney, Henry Kortjohn.

Frederick's eyes were turned toward the floor and he was visibly nervous. When he took his seat at a table inside the bar enclosure he crossed his legs and placed his hat on his knee. He nervously drummed with his fingers, first on the hat and then on the table.

Selden P. Spencer, one of Fredericks' counsel, already was in the courtroom and word was sent to Judge Jones, who had been waiting in his chamber adjoining the courtroom.

Circuit Attorney Harvey, who also had been waiting, advanced to the bar and picked up from the clerk's desk the four indictments against Frederick.

Harvey said: "Your Honor, August H. Frederick is in court prepared to enter a plea of guilty on a charge of first degree forgery. The specific charge on which he desires to plead is that on Nov. 12, 1910, he forged the name of Ester Ellis on a deed of trust issued against property in the city of St. Louis.

Waives Reading of Indictment.

Attorney Kortjohn then turned to Frederick and said: "Do you waive the reading of the indictment?"

Frederick then stood up and leaned against a small table near the clerk's desk. His hands trembled and his body swayed.

"Do you desire to plead guilty to the charge in this indictment?" asked Kortjohn. For a third time Frederick nodded his head. He did not utter a word while in the courtroom.

Circuit Attorney Harvey then recommended that a 10-year sentence be imposed and that a nolle pros be entered in the remaining three indictments.

Judge Jones then said: "It is the sentence of the Court that you serve 10 years in the penitentiary."

Frederick was taken in charge at once by Sheriff Dickmann and placed under guard in the office of the chief diagnostician of the Health Department in the basement of the Municipal Courts Building. Asked if he had a statement to make Frederick said: "Mr. Spencer, my lawyer, has my statement."

Attorney Spencer said he had prepared a statement which he would give out later in the day at his office.

"This Is Pretty Hard."

Frederick departed from the Municipal Courts Building ostensibly for Union Station in a closed automobile at 1 p. m. Before this he was vaccinated by Dr. M. C. Woodruff and Dr. C. H. Lawrence of the Health Department.

Dr. Woodruff told reporters that while being vaccinated Frederick said: "This is pretty hard. We think we can make restitution, but we can't. 'Dr. Woodruff said this was the only reference Frederick made to his case.

The automobile was in waiting in a courtyard of the building and was headed toward the Fourteenth street entrance. When Frederick left Dr. Woodruff's office to go to the entrance he ran about 30 feet. The automobile reached the entrance just as he did and he jumped into the machine, apparently trying to dodge newspaper photographers.

Spencer was in the machine and Deputy Sheriff Joseph F. Dickmann Jr. got in with Frederick. He will accompany Frederick to Jefferson City. Dickman said Frederick would take lunch at Union Station.

Frederick and Crone Indicted.

Frederick and Charles C. Crone each were indicted on four different charges of first degree forgery by the April grand jury, which made a partial report to Circuit Judge Jones at 10 o'clock this morning.

Although Frederick and Crone could have been indicted on charges of forging notes, for which the penalty is from two to seven years in the penitentiary, the indictments were drawn for first degree forgery, for which the minimum punishment is imprisonment for 10 years.

The forgery of the names of Frederick H. and Gertie Gossel of 4026 North Newstead avenue to a deed of trust for $3500, covering their property, and the sale of the forged deed to Mrs. Anna Weinheimber, a widow, of 6170 McPherson avenue. This deed is dated Nov. 6, 1909. The exposure of Frederick followed an investigation at the Recorder's office by Mrs. Weinheimer, when she became suspicious of Frederick when the Post-Dispatch was investigating several of his real estate deals.

The second indictment is on a forged deed of trust covering the same property and the forgery of the same names. This deed also was for $3500 and was sold to Mrs. Elizabeth F. Baker of 7123 Kingsbury boulevard.

Sale to Stenographer Involved.

The third indictment is for the forgery of the name of Ester Ellis, now a resident of Winchester, Ill., to a deed of trust for $2200 on property at 3732 Cook

ROCKEFELLER JR. TO TESTIFY AGAIN ON MINE STRIKE

Correspondence Indicating He Had Advance Knowledge of Colorado Conditions Causes Reopening of Federal Industrial Relations Inquiry.

HAD DENIED HE WAS AWARE OF SITUATION

Ivy Lee, Son of St. Louis Presiding Elder and Rockefeller Publicity Man, Alleged to Have Framed Letters for Gov. Ammons.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 24.—Information contained in letters and telegrams passing between John D. Rockefeller Jr. and officers of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co., made public here by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the Federal Industrial Relations Committee, caused Walsh to announce that the hearing concerning the coal miners' strike in Colorado would be reopened, and the junior Rockefeller recalled to the witness stand.

Beside Rockefeller, J. F. Welborn, president of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co.; L. M. Bowers, chairman of the company's Executive Committee, and Ivy Lee, Rockefeller's publicity agent, will be called to testify. The hearing will open in Washington May 4, Walsh said. Ivy Lee is the son of the Rev. Dr. J. W. Lee of St. Louis, presiding elder of the M. E. Church, South.

The correspondence was obtained by Walsh from Rockefeller's New York office in compliance with a demand of the commission. It was not forthcoming, Walsh announced, in time for its contents to be used at the recent hearing in New York, and he considered the information contained in it of a character to warrant the reopening of the hearing.

What Correspondence Shows.

"The commission has today made as a part of its record," Walsh said, "a mass of correspondence not only showing that the Rockefellers were in constant touch with every phase of the Colorado coal strike situation, but they knew the strike was coming and were prepared for it.

"Mr. Rockefeller testified at the hearing of the commission in New York and also before the Congressional Investigating Committee that he had kept his hands off the strike situation and had no knowledge of conditions in the coal fields. These letters and telegrams which we have today filed in the record make it plain that every step taken by the Rockefeller agents in Colorado in the strike was taken with the knowledge and assent of Mr. Rockefeller's office in New York.

"In other letters Mr. Bowers indulges in some political speculations that are of importance. In a letter to Mr. Rockefeller he writes:

"'The strike has brought to the front an issue which will secure the attention and, I believe, the co-operation of the business men of the country, regardless of political affiliations—to force candidates for offices to come out in the open and declare their attitude toward the rights of employers and employes to run an open shop. We all know that the politicians have been giving organized labor sops for the purpose of securing their votes. I believe there is no man in either the Republican or Democratic party, who would dare come out in opposition to the open shop.'

Sought to Impress President.

"Another amazing revelation in this correspondence is that contained in letters exchanged between Rockefeller, and Mr. Lee, his publicity agent, at the time Gov. Ammons was acting in the strike adjustment. The letters deal first with the desire and plans of the Rockefellers to get their side of the question before President Wilson. Under date of June 10, 1914, Mr. Rockefeller wrote this to Mr. Lee:

"'Several points in my memorandum, however, could well, even more appropriately be used in the letter from Gov. Ammons to President Wilson, which you are proposing to prepare as soon as the Major's memorandum reaches you, which I hope will be very shortly.'

"We do not know what this proposed letter or this memorandum contained, but we expect to find out," Walsh said.

"The correspondences shows that there were other letters, too, which Mr. Lee was to prepare for Gov. Ammons, one to be directed to the Governors of other states. Concerning that Mr. Rockefeller wrote Mr. Lee as follows:

"'I should be interested to see the letter from Gov. Ammons to the Governors, and also the Tarrytown article which you are preparing.'

"On July 2, Mr. Lee wrote to Rockefeller as follows, concerning the Ammons letter:

"'With reference to the letter for Gov. Ammons, I am not entirely satisfied with the draft I prepared, and I am making certain amendments to it I sent a draft out for discussion, but will get it into shape in a day or two, and then send you a copy.'

Papers Planned by Rockefellers.

"The correspondence further discloses," Walsh said, "the fact that Mr. Rockefeller had a plan for publishing a string of daily newspapers and financing the official organ of the National Chamber of Commerce."

Concerning the alleged knowledge of Rockefeller of the conditions in the coal field, Walsh quotes from a letter from Bowers to Starr J. Murphy, personal representative of John D. Rockefeller Sr. It is concerning a report of an interview Murphy had with Ethelbert Stewart of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in which Stewart was instructed to try to avert the impending strike. He quotes from the letter.

"Your favor was read by both Mr. Welborn and myself, with greatest satisfaction. You handled the matter raised by Mr. Stewart with exceptional skill and it leaves us unhandicapped, in case there is a strike."

"Mr. Bowers then followed with a letter of six typewritten pages explaining the entire situation in the coal fields and the matters in controversy between the miners and the operators," Walsh said:

"Another telegram from Mr. Rockefeller to Mr. Bowers is dated the day of the strike and contains effusive praise of Mr. Bowers, thanking him for the showing the company had made during the fiscal year and containing no word of concern for the 8000 miners, who that day were deprived of their livelihood," Walsh said.

Officials Announce Firm Stand.

"Another telegram dated a week after the strike had begun, from Mr. Bowers to Mr. Rockefeller, declares that he and his fellow officials would never recede from the stand they had taken in the strike, and continues:

"'The writer, with every official of this company, will stand behind this declaration until our bones are bleached as white as chalk in these Rocky Mountains.'

"Then," Walsh said, "he adds this note of cheer:

"'Several of our mines are working from one-half to two-thirds capacity, and if we can continue undisturbed we can keep our steel works running and supply our railroad friends with coal to keep them going until the strike is over.'

"Nov. 21, Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor, made an effort to intervene in the strike and sent a telegram to Mr. Rockefeller Jr., asking him to authorize representatives of the operators to meet representatives of the miners and confer on the basis of a settlement. Mr. Rockefeller's reply, which with the Secretary's telegram, is filed with the commission, was a flat refusal, coupled with the statement that the action of the mine executive had his cordial support and that he would support them to the end.

"Throughout the correspondence the idea of creating the proper impression with the public occupies an important place," declared Walsh.

In discussing the reopening of the hearing Walsh said:

"Such testimony as the commission was able to get from Mr. Rockefeller concerning his knowledge and connection with the Colorado strike, was fragmentary, but with the information now before us I believe he will be a much more valuable witness. We will have Mr. Bowers on the stand, too, to explain, for one thing, to whom he referred in a letter of August 16 to Mr. Rockefeller, in which he said the political gang at Washington was at its wits' end to find some way out of the pit they had helped the striking miners to dig in Colorado.

"The answers to the questions we will ask, based on this information, will furnish a valuable portion of the commission's report."

DENVER, Colo., April 24.—Former Gov. E. M. Ammons, when shown the correspondence between John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Ivy L. Lee, as made public by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the Federal Relations Commission, said:

"I never sent out a letter on any phase of the Colorado coal miners' strike that I did not prepare myself. I never heard of Ivy L. Lee until his name was brought out at the Denver investigation of the Industrial Relations Commission and never had any correspondence with him. I furnished copies of all my correspondence on the strike to the Industrial Relations Commission during the Denver hearing.

Mr. Ammons added: "The only time I ever met a representative of Mr. Rickefeller was a few weeks ago, when W. L. Mackenzie King discussed with me labor conditions in Colorado."

were repulsed. Fighting continues in the region north of Ypres.

Today's statement from German headquarters says:

"Attempts made by the enemy to reconquer lost terrain to the north and northeast of Ypres failed. The French and British attacks broke down under the German fire. The number of prisoners—French, English and Belgian—rose to 2470. The pieces of cannon captured up to the present total 35. In addition, a large number of machine guns and rifles and much ammunition and other war material were taken by the Germans. West of the Ypres Canal the Germans stormed the town of Lizerne.

"In the Champagne region the Germans blasted an enemy trench. Near Beausejourferme the French shelled their own trenches with artillery.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle French attacks failed. The enemy who had entered the German trenches were ejected. In th Forest of Le Pretre the Germans made progress."

The French official statement gives fuller particulars of the way the Germans forced the French lines back Thursday evening to the north of Ypres, between the Yser canal and the Boel Capelle road. Thick, yellow smoke emitted from the German trenches, and driven by northerly winds, produced an effect of complete asphyxiation among the troops, which was felt even in the second line positions.

"Counter attacks made yesterday already have enabled us to regain part of the ground lost," says the statement. "Our situation has been completely consolidated and our action is being carried out under good conditions with the support of the British and Belgian troops."

SUBMARINE SINKS BRITISH STEAMER

Crew of Coal Ship Landed in Scotland After Being Adrift 12 Hours.

LONDON, April 24.—The freighter Ruth was sunk by a German submarine Wednesday when about 100 miles east of May Island in the North Sea. The crew was rescued and was landed at Leith, Scotland.

The Ruth left Leith with a cargo of coal for Gothenburg. Capt. Andersen, her skipper, who is a Swede, reports that the first torpedo discharged by the submarine missed its mark. The second torpedo struck the Ruth amidships, wrecking the vessel. The 16 members of the crew were all Swedes. They drifted about in small boats for 12 hours before being picked up.

Allied Troops Reported Landed at Three Points in Turkey.

LONDON, April 24.—The Daily Mail's Athens correspondent says:

"The new Dardanelles attack by the allies has begun with the landing of troops at three points—Enos on the Suvla promontory, on the west of the Gallipoli peninsula, and on the Sulair Isthmus.

"The object of these troops is the capture of the Turkish forts on the Gallipoli peninsula and to prevent the sending of Turkish reinforcements across the Bullar Isthmus. The troops have captured Enos and the passage from that port into the interior is not expected to offer difficulties.

"Meanwhile, the fleet on Thursday renewed its vigorous bombardment of the straits and of various points on the west coast of Gallipoli."

BREITUNG TESTIFIES IN ALIENATION SUIT OF HIS COACHMAN

Admits He Tried to Strike Kleist, His Son-in-Law, Who Wore His Socks and Cravat.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Edward N. Breitung, capitalist, was called to the stand when the suit for $250,000, brought against him and his wife by Max Frederick Kleist, a coachman, for alienation of the affection of their daughter, Juliet, was resumed in the United States District Court today.

Breitung's testimony, a resume of that given at the first hearing of the suit which ended in a mistrial, was that he was disposed to act in Kleist's interest from the start and was willing to help him. On cross-examination, however, Breitung admitted that on one occasion he was going to strike and kick Kleist, but Juliet intervened. This was when Kleist called on his parents-in-law here. Breitung said Kleist was wearing "my socks, cravat and scarf pin."

"Why were you going to strike him?" the witness was asked.

"Because he made a slighting remark about my daughter. He made slighting remarks first about Mrs. Breitung's family and then about my own family."

Kleist protested, the witness said, that the socks, cravat and scarf pin were given to him by Juliet. After Breitung's anger had cooled, he said, he asked Kleist to go to New Mexico. Witness said he did this to give him a chance to make good.

Breitung said his daughter had asked him to have the marriage annulled. The suggestion came from her, not the witness. He told her, without giving any reason, that it could not be done, he said.

"She said she wanted to get an annullment and get married again," Breitung testified. "She said she was somewhat ashamed."

Frederick on Way To Serve 10 Years In Penitentiary avenue. This deed was sold to Anna D. Polanek, a stenographer, of 5102A Garfield avenue. It was dated Nov. 12, 1910. Miss Polanek had had previous satisfactory dealings with Frederick, and a deed of trust for $1500 he had sold her had been repaid, when he urged her to get additional money and buy the $2200 deed of trust.

The fourth indictment covers a deed of trust for $2000, hypothecated with the Central National Bank March 20, 1915, by Frederick for a loan. The name of Mrs. Jennie C. McClain of 4531 McPherson avenue, widow of W. H. McClain, who was superintendent of the Provident Association, was forged to this deed. It was dated March 14, 1912.

The first charges the forgery of the name of Theodore H. Wurmb of 1921 East Grand avenue to a deed of trust for $3000, covering property at that address. The deed was sold to John H. Kohring of 4453 Margaretta avenue. The valid deed of trust on this property is held by the Boatmen's Bank.

The second charges the forgery of the names of Henry F. Woehler and Alvina, his wife, to a deed of trust for $2000 on property at 3818 North Twenty-fifth street, where they reside, and the sale of the forged deed to the St. Louis Medical Society. The deed was dated Aug. 15, 1913.

Deed Sold to Sisters.

The third charges the forgery of the name of Thomas A. McCarthy of 4408 North Second street to a deed of trust for $1000, covering the property at that address, and the sale of the forged deed to Sophie and Louisa Klocke, sisters, who live on a farm near Florissant. The deed was bought May 12, 1913.

The fourth charges the forgery of the name of Joseph W. Mattman and Dora, his wife, to a deed of trust for $5500 on property at 1927-1929 Newhouse avenue, where they reside, and the sale of the forged deed to John Buck, 79 years old, of 3506 Sullivan avenue.

Buck had known Crone and had been intimately acquainted with him for 40 years and the $5500 Crone obtained from him was almost all that he had. Kohring had know Crone and Crone's father for many years.

Campbell Cummings of counsel for C. C. Crone, today said he would not advise Crone to plead guilty and accept a 10-yearr sentence, as Frederick had done. At this time, he said, it seemed certai nthat Crone would stand trial.

The report made by the grand jury this morning is only a partial report and the jury next week will continue its investigation of real estate frauds.

'FLYING SQUADRON' IN PROHIBITION MEETINGS TODAY

Former Gov. Hanly of Indiana One of Speakers at Union Avenue Christian Church.

Former Governor J. Frank Hanly of Indiana and Oliver Wayne Stewart, formerly a member of the Illinois States Legislature, are to speak at the Union Avenue Christian Church, Union boulevard and Von Versen avenue, tomorrow afternoon and evening, in the interest of the three-day "rapid-fire" prohibition campaign which the "Flying Squadron of America" opened in St. Louis yesterday.

A saloonless land attained through an aroused public opinion is the object of the organiaztion, which is completing a tour of America. Since last October 200 towns and cities in the United States have been visited, and at least 50 more will be campaigned before the tour ends in June. A score of speakers and soloists comprise the group, many of them nationally famous as prohibition workers.

The idea of the squadron originated in November, 1913, when over 3000 temperance workers gathered in Columbus, O., to discuss ways and means to abolish the liquor traffic. The group was then formed and the tour began last fall. All expenses are paid from the contributions, and the workers virtually give their time free to the cause which they represent.

Independent Movement.

The squadron is not officially connected with any other temperance organization, having as its one sole idea the crystalizing of public opinion in the United States to the extent where the saloon will be absolutely abolished.

The campaign is being managed in a business-like way. Three day meetings are held in each town visited, ministers of the various churches arousing interest in the series beforehand. One group of speakers and soloists arrives the first day, and departs for the next town the next morning. As it goes the second group arrives, and so on.

Former Gov. Hanly told a reporter that the speakers had been from coast to coast in their tour, that they mean to make the people of the country realize their responsibility in the matter of abolishing liquor forever from America.

"A saloonless land, a stainless flag, a sober people," is one of the slogans of the squadron. While the squadron will help any local fight that may be on, or any state contest that may be waging, theirs is a national struggle, they say.

College President a Speaker.

Dr. Ira Landrith, president of Ward-Belmont College, who aided in the campaign which made Tennessee a dry state, is considered one of the ablest speakers in the squadron.

"Had not the party-loyalty divorce court been so busy separating men's politics from men's religion, the liquor problem would no longer vex us," he said. "We would then be all agreed that the man for whom the Golden Rule has no attractions, and the Decalogue no terrors, has no business in politics, while the man who votes while he prays, and prays as he votes, and who both prays and votes for the public welfare and not for private interest, has no business out of politics."

Landrith says that the saloon is an unmixed evil, and that unmixed evils are never necessary evils. Landrith spoke at today's meetings. The visit of the Squadron to St. Louis will end tomorrow with two meetings at the Union Avenue Christian Church at 3 and 8 p. m.

FRONT OR REAR?

Where are you going to be in the PROSPERITY march? Up near the head of the procession with the LIVE WIRES or struggling along in the rear with the NEAR FAILURES?

YOU had better decide now. Let 1915 be the dawn of your decisive battle for independence. A HOME OF YOUR OWN and the fight is half won.

The quick return to active business conditions will naturally cause real estate values to increase rapidly. The time to invest for profit or buy for a home is NOW.

Tomorrow's big REAL ESTATE and WANT DIRECTORY with the Sunday Post-Dispatch will contain 3000 offers of HOUSES, HOMES, REAL ESTATE and farms—1000 more than the next nearest newspaper.

COGGINS' LAWYERS ASK THAT HE BE SENT TO REFORMATORY

A petition has been filed in the Juvenile Court asking that Jessie E. Coggins, recently convicted of murdering his mother, be sent to the Boonville Reform School instead of to the penitentiary, to which he was sentenced. The petition is based on a section of the Missouri Statutes, which provides that no delinquent person under 17 years of age shall be placed in any jail or other place in which adult prisoners are confined.

The petition states that the penitentiary is not equipped to separate youthful offenders from other convicts.

Judge Cave told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he did not believe the statute applied to persons convicted of murder.

Speakers With 'Squadron' Are Nationally Prominent

THE Flying Squadron of America is composed of a score of speakers and soloists, recruited from politics, the church, the school and the business world, many of whom are nationally prominent.

It embraces the United States as its field and at the end of its seven months' campaign in June its members will have traveled from coast to coast, and held meetings in 250 cities.

The Squadron travels on schedule time arranged by its advance agent. It is divided into three groups. One arrives one day, holds a meeting, and departs the next morning for another town. At the same time the second group arrives to continue the series. Expenses are paid out of the contributions. The majority of the speakers have private means at their disposal, and give their time practically free.

Democracy must be decent or die!

Republicanism must be respectable or ruined!

Progressivism must be pure or it is pre-ordained to perish!

WIDOW FAILS TO OBTAIN REPLEVIN; HUSBAND BURIED

John Jones Had Forbidden Wife He Separated From 15 Years Ago to See Body.

John Jones, 61 years old, who died Wednesday at the home of his son, Ferdinand Jones, in Valley Park, was buried yesterday afternoon when his widow, Kate, from whom he had been separated 15 years, failed to obtain a writ of replevin for possession of the body.

Jones, who was section foreman of the Frisco Railroad at Valley Park for many years, and afterward was a foreman for the Rock Island Railroad, died of pneumonia after a short illness.

Wednesday evening his widow, who is said by Valley Park residents to reside at 1245 South Vandeventer avenue, appeared at the home of Jones' son by a previous marriage. The son told her that his father's dying wish was that she should not be permitted even to see his body.

Mrs. Jones hastened to the office of Justice of the Peace Jack Sturdy and demanded a writ of replevin to get possession of the body. Justice Sturdy was a friend of the Jones family and already had been selected as one of the pall bearers. He told Mrs. Jones that he knew of no law for the issuance of a replevin writ in a case of that kind.

Mrs. Jones telephoned to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Floyd W. Brooks, but he refused to interfere. She departed from Valley Park after announcing that she would employ an attorney in St. Louis and take charge of the funeral.

The services was held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Modern Woodmen of America, in which Jones had $2000 insurance. He also had a little other property.

PRESIDENT HAS NOT TAKEN CHARGE OF RIGGS BANK CASE

Secretary Tumulty Issues Statement Denying Report Executive Was in Personal Control.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—At the White House today a statement was issued by Secretary Tumulty denying reports that President Wilson had taken personal charge of the Government's side of the controversy between the Riggs National Bank and Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams. This was the statement:

"There is not a thread of truth in the stories in the morning papers that the President has personally taken over the investigation of the Riggs bank."

The bank has brought an injunction suit against Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams alleging that they conspired to wreck it because of personal animosities for its officers.

WOMAN WITH BABY ARRESTED IN OLEO RAID; SHOTS FIRED

Revenue Agent Uses Revolver, but Men Escape From Alleged "Moonshine" Plant.

Three United States Revenue Agents in an exciting raid on an alleged "moonshine" oleo plant at the Carnation Creamery, 1934 Semple avenue, last night arrested a woman with a two-months-old baby in her arms, and one man, and confiscated 410 pounds of oleo. The woman, Mrs. Jack Dwyer, and her baby, spent the morning in the Matron's room at Police Headquarters.

The agents had received information that oleo was being colored and sold from the place without the payment of the revenue tax. Approaching the house at 10 p. m., they saw the shadow of a man against the curtain of a basement window. He appeared to be working at a tub.

While Revenue Agent F. T. Diggs rang the bell at the front door, Agents W. H. Fowle and Ernest Langley went to the rear basement door. When the door was not opened at their knock, they broke it open. A man ran from a tub up a stairway to the first floor. They followed him, reaching the first floor in time to see him evade capture by Diggs, who had gained entrance. Diggs said Mrs. Dwyer, proprietor of the creamery, holding her baby in her arms, stepped between him and the fleeing man. The man escaped out a side door. Diggs fired two shots at him.

While Fowle and Langley went to a nearby saloon to use a telephone, three men entered the basement from the rear. Diggs ordered them out, and was trying to hold them by pointing his revolver at them, when Mrs. Dwyer attracted his attention, he said, by attempting to escape. While he was holding her, the men escaped under fire from Diggs.

A few minutes later Fowle and Langley arrested a man who ran into the saloon without hat or coat, and breathless. He said he was Rufus Bruner, 20, a teamster of 2513 Arlington avenue.

This morning revenue agents arrested Mrs. Dwyer's brother-in-law, Andrew Dwyer, at the house. He recently was sentenced to serve two years and nine months in the Federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., for oleo frauds, and is now at liberty on a $5000 apepal bond.

Saloon Keeper Shoots Self to Death.

John J. Maher, 34 years old, of 3931A Page avenue, went into the basement of his saloon, 3900 Easton avenue, last night and shot himself to death. His brother, Thomas Maher, told the police the saloon keeper had suffered a nervous breakdown.

BURGLARS CARRY SAFE INTO ICE BOX AND TRY TO OPEN IT

Burglars climbed a side porch to the vacant rooms above Carl Carillon's butcher shop, 2843 Madison street, last night, descended an inside stairway to the shop and carried Carillon's safe into the icebox.

The manner in which the strongbox was battered indicated the robbers worked on it for a long time. However, they did not succeed in getting it open. Their work attracted no attention as the thick walls of the refrigerator prevented and deadened the noise. They got 25 cents from a cash drawer and a book of trading stamps.

$3000 EMPLOYE OF SCHOOL BOARD NOTIFIED TO QUIT

Building Commissioner Milligan Serves Notice on William Buck.

William Buck, who was appointed in March by Building Commissioner R. N. Milligan of the Board of Education to be Superintendent of Maintenance, Buildings and Grounds, at a salary of $3000 a year, has been notified that his services will not be required after the end of this month.

Superintendent Buck was appointed by Commissioner Milligan to fill the newly-created position, and his dismissal so soon after his appointment has caused some surprise.

Commissioner Milligan was reluctant today to discuss his reasons for giving notice to Superintendent Buck. The Superintendent, he said, had been dismissed for the good of the service. It had been found that while he was not lacking in efficiency he was deficient in tact and by talking too freely had spread demoralization among janitors and other employes.

BIG CAMPAIGN GIFT JUST LIKE HELPING CHURCH, T. R. SAYS

STANDARD OIL'S HELP WAS SURPRISE TO HIM

Alleged Harriman Fund of $240,000 Was Reported to Him as Having Never Existed, He Declares—To Take Stand Again Monday.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 24.—There was no session of court today in the trial of William Barnes' $50,000 suit for alleged libel against Theodore Roosevelt. Col. Roosevelt will take the stand again Monday for further cross-examination by William Ivins, attorney for Barnes. Roosevelt told yesterday, the second day of his cross-examination, about his dealings with the "bosses," his personal relations with Barnes and his ideas about campaign funds of millions of dollars.

He mentioned the famous $500,000 which Thomas Fortune Ryan contributed to the presidential cause of Alton B. Parker, and swore he never had seen a list of the names of the persons who helped swell the fund of $3,000,000 used in connection with his own campaign for the presidency. The list contained the initials of men whom the Colonel readily identified as being allied with the country's most powerful business and financial interests.

Just Like Giving to a Church.

In speaking of the Ryan contribution, the witness gave it as his opinion that a leader of big business who contributes a half-million dollars to help elect a candidate for President of the United States is prompted by the same spirit which would cause him to donate a similar sum to a church, and that such a contributor has no more hope of reward in one case than he has in the other.

Personally, he said, he would have been very much surprised if many masters of big business had not contributed to the Republican campaign of 1904.

The Colonel mentioned the Standard Oil Co.'s campaign contributions, too. He said that if the report of the congressional committee which investigated contributions to his campaign showed "H. H. R." and "J. D. A."—which the witness thought stood for H. H. Rogers and John D. Archbold—had contributed to the Republican fund in 1904, he was astonished. He said he had given explicit instructions against receiving any Standard Oil contributions.

Personally, he emphatically declared, he would regard just as highly a contribution of $25 from the station agent at Oyster Bay as he would a contribution of $25,000 from George W. Perkins, who in 1904 was a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. He expressed the belief that there was a limit to the amount a campaign fund should total. Over a certain sum, he did not know how much, he thought that there might be some danger.

The witness swore that the late E. H. Harriman himself had told him that there never was any such thing as a "$240,000 Harriman fund." He did identify, as being his, a letter he wrote to Harriman, in which it was said, "we are practical men" and that if Harriman thought there was any "danger" in coming to the White House at that time, he might come later and discuss a certain matter.

Barnes a "Jekyll and Hyde."

Col. Roosevelt said he regarded William Barnes as a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," who, like other politicians, had his "good and his bad sides." He said he had been persistent in his effort to make politicians do what he thought was right and instead of endeavoring to sever the ligaments of "these Siamese twins of politics" his aim had always been to have the "Dr. Jekyll" absorb the "Mr. Hyde."

Many letters that passed between Barnes and the witness were identified by the latter and read to the jury. In these letters the pair discussed political and legislative matters and the appointment to offices in the State government of several men. In one of the letters Barnes expressed stern disapproval of a measure which proposed State Senators should be elected for four years and Assemblymen for two, because such conditions would give the voters little opportunity to register approval or disapproval.

"Did you ever hear of the so-called Harriman fund amounting to about $240,000 that was raised by E. H. Harriman toward the close of your campaign in 1904 for your election to the presidency and for the purpose of the national committee?" asked Ivins, late yesterday. "I have heard explicitly that there was no such fund raised for my election for the presidency," Roosevelt replied.

"No Doubt About My Election."

"Didn't the money which was expended towards the election of Higgins as Governor contribute toward the election of the New York delegation to the electoral college in your favor?" "I don't think it contributed to it at all," Roosevelt said. "My election already was assured when that money was sent on. There was no doubt about my election. The whole question"—

"That is your opinion?"

"That is the opinion of everybody."

"Have you any idea as to the total of these subscriptions that I have asked you about?" "I cannot say," the witness answered, "but my memory is that Mr. Cortelyou told me that our funds were about one-half the size of that of Mr. McKinley when he was elected, and that it was about $3,000,000. My memory is that he told me there were four or five thousand contributors."

"You knew E. H. Harriman pretty well, didn't you?" "I knew him well."

"Practical Men" Letter.

Mr. Ivins read a letter from Col. Roosevelt to Mr. Harriman. It reads:

The suggestion has come to me in a roundabout way that you do not think it wise to come on and see me in the closing weeks of the campaign; that you are reluctant to refuse so long as I have asked you. Now, my dear sir, you and I are practical men, and you are on the ground and know the conditions better than I do. If you think there is any danger to your visit that may cause trouble, or if you think there is anything special I should be informed about, or any matter in which I could give aid, why, of course, I give up the visit for the time being and in a few weeks, perhaps, before I write my message, I shall get you to come down to discuss certain governmental matters not connected with the campaign."

"Now, do you mean to tell this jury that down to the present time you never knew the names of the parties that contributed to your campaign fund in 1904?" "Yes. I inquired definitely to know whether any contributions had been or would be accepted and any obligation expressed or implied as to anything whatever being done in the way of legislative or executive action because of such contributions. I received explicit assurances that no contribution would be accepted with any such obligation expressed or implied, and that I would take office absolutely free from any obligation of any kind, sort or description in consequence of any contribution that had been made."

"Did you see any connection whatever between business and politics in contributions of $100,000, $50,000, $20,000?" asked Ivins. "No more connection," replied the Colonel, "than there is when those same men contribute to the Y. M. C. A. I mention this because I know that George W. Perkins, during the time that he was contributing so heavily to the campaign funds, was contributing much more liberally to the building of the Y. M. C. A.'s, and the contribution from Mr. Perkins of $25,000 might be considerably less than a contribution of $25 from the station agent at Oyster Bay, and I should feel as grateful to the one man for the $25 as to the other man for the $25,000 contribution, and I should be incapable of acting for either in any way because of that contribution."

"Did I understand you to say that the $3,000,000 contributions to a campaign fund is to be placed in the same category when you are running for President of the United States as for the Y. M. C. A.? "Yes, precisely, and with no more hope of reward. I believe, for instance, that Mr. Ryan's contribution was given in the same spirit to Mr. Parker. I don't think it was given with any idea of personal gain or any advantage."

"I am asking you whether or not you placed that contribution in the same category, for instance, as Mr. Ryan's contribution for the building of St. Joseph's Church in New York City?" "In his case I have no question that it was done in the same spirit. Mr. Ryan was very strongly opposed to me and wished to beat me, and I believe he was entirely sincere in his desire to do it."

Readily Admits Statements.

Ivins at that point questioned the witness at length upon statements made at various times while he was President to the effect that under no consideration would he be a candidate for the office again. The Colonel readily admitted that he had made all the statements.

Col. Roosevelt answered nearly a hundred questions about the nomination of Taft and his activity in obtaining it. He also told of having Louis Payne, whom he got out of office of State Superintendent of Insurance, call at the White House.

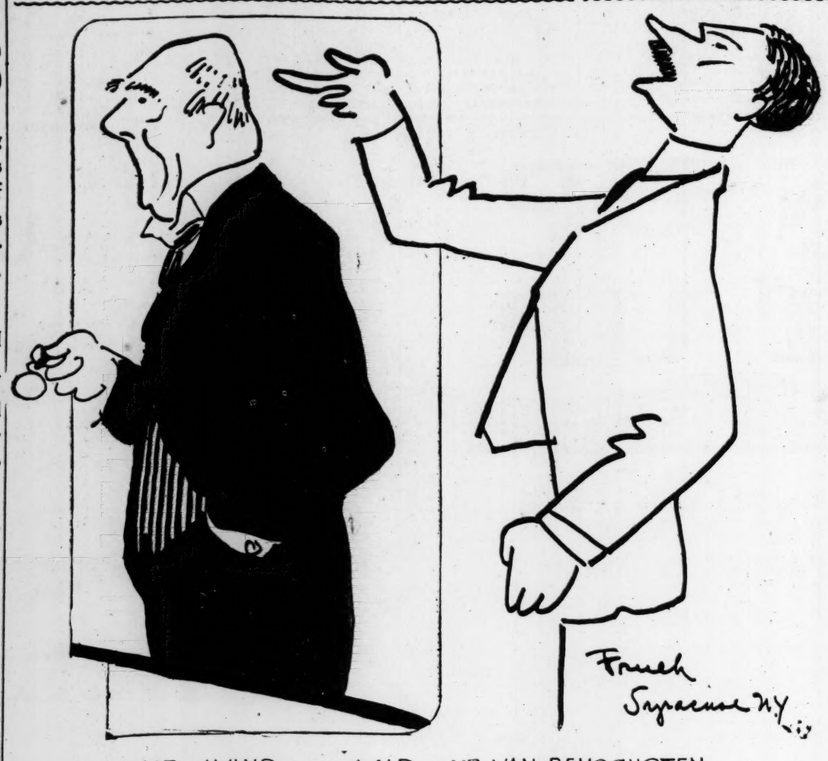

The Colonel was just as active on the stand yesterday as upon the three previous days. He moved around in his chair, addressed his own and his plaintiff's counsel and Justice Andrews. More than once he had the entire courtroom in an uproar. Some times the presiding Justice himself was forced to place his hand over sis mouth to hide a smile.

Barnes seemed to enjoy the affair also. On one occasion when the Colonel was talking about bosses in states other than this, he solemnly remarked, that there was considerabe difference between the meaning of the word "boss" in them and in New York. That amused Barnes greatly as it did the spectators.

Only once did the Colonel exhibit any outward sign of fatigue. That was well toward the end of the proceedings, when he placed his elbow upon the Judge's bench beside him and rested his head upon his hand.

Barnes went to Albany last night but Col. Roosevelt elected to remain in Syracuse until Monday. Several conferences have been arranged for today by attorneys on both sides.

IS YOUR SKIN TENDER? TRY RESINOL SOAP

Any soap will CLEAN your skin—a bar of laundry soap will do if you do not care what becomes of your complexion. But you know that laundry soap contains harsh, drying alkali that would ruin your skin and hair, so you never think of using it for your toilet.

Many toilet soaps contain this same injurious alkali. Resinol Soap contains absolutely no free alkali, and to it is added that medication which has made Resinol Ointment so successful in the treatment of skin and scalp affections. This gives it soothing, healing properties which clear the complexion, comfort tender skins and keep the hair rich and lustrous. Resinol Soap and Ointment are sold by all druggists. GORDON LOSES FOR ALDERMANIC CLERK JOB BY ONE VOTE

D. V. Dever Wins in Fight by Ballot of Vice President Haller of the Board.

William V. Dever was elected assistant clerk of the Board of Aldermen, yesterday, by a single vote, over Republican City Committeeman Maurice J. Gordon, former assistant secretary of the Council.

Vice President Julius Haller cast the deciding vote on the fourth ballot and defeated Gordon. Gordon was supported by Haller four years ago in his fight for the Council post, but Gordon refused to support Haller in the recent aldermanic primary because Haller was not on the slate arranged by the City Committee.

The election of Dever ends a four days' fight over the post, in which Daniel A. Corbett, assistant clerk of the last House of Delegates, was supported by five Aldermen. With the sanction of Mayor Kiel and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, a bill was introduced by Alderman Nat Hall, abolishing the post of stenographer at $1200 a year, and creating a second assistant clerk at $2000.

Corbett's expert services are desired by many Aldermen, and it has been tacitly agreed that Corbett would fill the new post. Clerk Clarence Fischer was elected with the understanding by some of his supporters that he would appoint Corbett to the post of stenographer.

Assistant Clerk Dever is a clerk in the Election Board offices and was nominated by Alderman Hampe of the Tenth Ward.

No Letters From Wife, Ends Life.

Joseph Saratene, 29 years old, shot himself to death on the back porch at 5311 Shaw avenue at 5:30 o'clock this morning. Others living there told the police Saratene was despondent because his wife in Italy had ceased writing to him.

VISITING NURSES IN TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT NEEDED HERE

Health Commissioner Starkloff Tells of Conditions and Possibilities.

The news story in yesterday's Post-Dispatch telling of the work being done in six other large American cities against tuberculosis, and setting forth in contrast the failure of St. Louis to do anything, as a municipality, in preventive work, was read with interest at the city hall, where the year's apportionment of funds for city work is being completed.

A dispatch from Cleveland, received too late for publication yesterday, shows that Cleveland is in line with New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore and Cincinnati, whose methods and expenditures were related.

The annual appropriation for anti-tuberculosis work in Cleveland, the dispatch states, is $39,282. There are six dispensaries, each under a salaried physician. There are 26 visiting nurses.

Cleveland has a sanitarium for early cases, with 225 beds; a sanatarium for advanced cases, with 100 beds; a colony for children, with 30 beds, and a day camp, with capacity for 20. A city ordinance requires the registration of cases and the removal of those so situated as to be dangerous to others. Disinfection of dwellings is also carried on.

No Dispensaries Here.

In comparison with this showing, St. Louis has no tuberculosis dispensaries, no visiting nurses, and a small municipal hospital (Koch) which, in practice, is for advanced cases only.

St. Louis has disinfection, conducted by the regular fumigators of the Health Department, in houses where tuberculosis patients have died. It has no requirement for the reporting of cases by physicians, and no means of compelling the removal of a patient who is a menace to others.

"A charitable woman, not long ago, found a family of four in which the wife and mother suffered from tuberculosis. The family was without a suitable sleeping place, and this woman bought a bed and bedding for the tuberculosis patient. The next time she went to call, she saw no other bedding around the place, and she learned that the man, wife and two children were all sleeping in the new bed and that the others were in far greater peril of infection than they had been before.

Need of Visiting Nurses.

"Now, this is the sort of thing that we need visiting nurses to prevent. The municipal visiting nurse is the first thing we need, and if this department had the appropriation, we could start a corps of such nurses at once and we would show results.

"The nurses would educate families in precautions against tuberculosis. They would teach the proper methods of infant care and feeding. They would report incipient cases of tuberculosis and take measures to protect relatives and neighbors from infection.

"The ultimate step in fighting tuberculosis must be the isolation of patients. Tuberculosis is more dangerous than the diseases for which we now isolate patients. People are shamed of tuberculosis because of the false idea that it is hereditary. It is not hereditary—it is infectious. When this false pride is overcome and when our physicians are required to report tuberculosis cases, we will be in a way to conquer the disease.

"While the dispensaries would not be under the control of this department, but under the hospital department, I am sure that tuberculosis dispensaries, on the New York and Chicago plan, would work in co-operation with the visiting nurse system. The health and hospital authorities know what to do. It is only a question of getting the money."

St. Louis Only Large City Not Fighting Tuberculosis

FACTS and figures contained in dispatches from six large American cities, printed in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, and in a dispatch from Cleveland, received too late for use yesterday, show that St. Louis is the only city of its rank which does nothing, as a municipality, to prevent the spread of tuberculosis.

These dispatches, compared with the facts of the local situation, show that:

New York has 29 free tuberculosis dispensaries, Chicago has 10, Cleveland has 6, Philadelphia has 4, Baltimore has 3, Boston has 1, Cincinnati has 1.

St. Louis has none.

New York has 200 municipal visiting nurses, Chicago has 75, Philadelphia 50, Boston 50, Cleveland 26 and Baltimore 17.

St. Louis has none.

In the matter of public and private hospital capacity for tuberculosis patients New York has 5850 beds, Chicago has 1800 beds, Philadelphia has 750 beds, Boston has 637 beds, Baltimore has 262 beds, Cincinnati has 680 beds, Cleveland has 450 beds.

St. Louis has 250 beds, of which 150 are at Koch Hospital.

The result of these conditions is shown in the comparative figures showing the percentage of deaths from tuberculosis to total number of deaths from all causes. This percentage, for 1913, was:

New York, 6.16 per cent; Baltimore, 8.58 per cent; Boston, 8.97 per cent; Philadelphia, 10.15 per cent; Chicago, 10.94 per cent.

St. Louis, 11.41 per cent (in 1914, 13 per cent).

M'QUILLIN TO GET PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION PLACE

Former Circuit Judge to Succeed F. A. Wightman, Who Goes to Frisco System.

Simultaneously with the announcement in Springfield, Mo., yesterday that Frank A. Wightman, a member of the Missouri Public Service Commission, had been appointed Superintendent of Safety of the Frisco System, Gov. Major in Jefferson City announced that he had accepted Wightman's resignation and would appoint former Circuit Judge Eugene McQuillan of St. Louis a member of the commission.

Wightman's term as a commissioner expired April 15. He was an applicant for reappointment and had received the indorsement of many Republicans and railway men's organizations throughout the State.

The Governor's failure to make an announcement of his intentions toward a reappointment of Wightman caused Wightman's friends several weeks ago almost to abandon hope. Wightman has had the offer from the Frisco for several months, and it has been known that he would accept it only if he decided he was not to be reappointed.

Frisco officials have been holding the position of Superintendent of Safety open to Wightman for several months, but are said to have informed him that he either must acept it or it would be tendered to some other person.

Wightman is a Republican and his appointment to the commission two years ago was due to the fact that he was a member of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, which was abolished when the Public Service Commission was created. Gov. Major provided places for all members of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, either on the Public Service Commission or elsewhere.

Judge McQuillin is a Republican. There is no requirement of law that the commission shall be bipartisan or nonpartisan, but Gov. Major has kept two Republicans on the commission, which has five members.

Wightman's appointment to the commission was for a short term of two years. Judge McQuillin will be appointed for six years.

Wightman was a passenger conductor on the Frisco for nearly 20 years before his election to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. He formerly resided at Monett. His home and office will be in Springfield.

GERMAN-AMERICANS OBJECT TO POST-DISPATCH CARTOON

Alliance Adopts Verbal Resolution of Protest—Banquet for Former Congressman Bartholdt Tonight.

The German-American Alliance last night in St. Louis Turner Hall, 1508 Chouteau avenue, adopted a verbal resolution of protest against the publication in yesterday's Post-Dispatch of a cartoon entitled "Now Behave."

The cartoon, based on Secretary of State Bryan's reply to Germany's note of protest over the sale of war munitions by American firms to England, France and Russia, depicted Uncle Sam spanking the German Ambassador, with Bryan's reply as the paddle.

The resolution declared that the German Ambassador represented the entire German population of this country and that this cartoon was objectionable to the German residents of America. A committee consisting of the Rev. E. F. Richter, who offered the resolution, William Kick and Henry A. Kersting, was appointed to present the protest to the Post-Dispatch.

Former Congressman Bartholdt will be a guest of honor at a banquet by the alliance tonight at the Chouteau avenue hall. The speakers will be Prof. Fred Bente, George Voges, Hans Hackel, Charles Botz of Sedalia, Prof. A. F. Schuermann of Kansas City and Charls H. Weinsberg.

U. S. Solicitor Recovers.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Cone Johnson, solicitor of the State Department, who has been ill for several weeks, returned to his post yesterday, after resting at his home in Dallas, Tex. During his absence the department was reinforced by Chandler Anderson, counselor under Secretary Knox.

ONE CENT AN HOUR IS WAGE OF MANY WOMEN IN FRANCE

Between 900,000 and 1,000,000 of Them Declared in French Senate to Be Virtually Slaves.

PARIS, April 24.—Some extraordinary statements regarding sweat-shop wages in this country were brought out in the Senate yesterday, during the debate on a bill to fix a minimum wage throughout France by boards created by the Government. Jean Morel said that between 900,000 and 1,000,000 women in France were now enduring insupportable servitude and receiving wages barely sufficient to maintain life.

M. Morel, Henry Cheron and Edouard Herriot stated that 27 per cent of the workers at home on household linen goods make from 2 1-10 cents to 4 cents an hour by intense industry. In some provincial centers pay for such work is 1 cent an hour.

In Paris 14 per cent of the women working upon undergarments make a maximum of $40 yearly. Makers of artificial flowers, employing much taste and manual dexterity, are able to make in the best season from 80 cents to $1 a day, but more than 50 per cent never are able to get beyond 30 or 40 cents. In the provinces women working upon underwear and ready-make clothing are able to make only 10 to 12 cents a day in most cases and rarely as much as 20 cents.

M. Morel, who prepared the senatorial committee's report, went into the question of how such women are able to live. He cited one case of a woman who made 19 cents a day. She paid 13 cents on an average for bread, cheese and vegetables, leaving 6 cents a day for lodging and clothing.

The bill passed its first reading in the Senate. It already had passed the chamber in November, 1912.

WAS MISERABLE COULDN'T STAND

Testifies She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"After my first child was born I felt very miserable and could not stand on my feet. My sister-in-law wished me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and my nerves became firm, appetite good, step elastic, and I lost that weak, tired feeling. That was six years ago, and I have had three fine, healthy children since. For female ailments I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it works like a charm. I do all my own work."—MRS. A. F. KREAMER, 1574 Electric avenue, Lackawanna, N. Y.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from tumors, backache, headache, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, sleeplessness or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.

BRIDE DECLARES HUSBAND ESSAYED CONFIDENCE GAME

Mrs. Zoe Reel Has Ralp Reel, Whom She Wed 24 Days Ago, Arrested at Union Station.

Mrs. Zoe Reel, 30 years old, of Palmyra, Ill., married 24 days ago through a matrimonial advertisement, caused the arrest of her husband, Ralph Reel, at Union Station last night, on a charge of attempting to work a confidence game.

Sheriff Knemoller of Carlinville, Ill., came here with the warrant yesterday, and, with two city detectives, was waiting for Reel when he stepped off a train from Chicago.

Mrs. Reel was Miss Zoe Arnold. A month ago, she said, she answered an advertisement which appeared in a matrimonial magazine and received a reply from Reel. His letter was dated at Springfield, Ill. A few days later he called on her at her home.

Reel, she said, told her his uncle had died, leaving an estate in which his share would be about $30,000, but that it would be necessary for him to have about $1500 to pay an attorney to establish his claim. She had inherited $2000 from her father and had invested it in notes. She agreed to negotiate these notes and let Reed have the money. They eloped to Jerseyville April 5 and were married.

Mrs. Reel said that after the marriage she tried to cash the notes in Palmyra, but failing in this, she turned them over to Reel, who departed the following day for Chicago.

Later, on her demand, she said, Reel returned the notes to her by mail and made an appointment to meet her in St. Louis yesterday. In his letter, she said, he told her she must have $500 in cash with her when she met him. She became suspicious hand had the warrant issued.

When arrested Reel denied that he had wrongfully tried to obtain money from his bride and said he did not instruct her to bring money with her when she met him in St. Louis.

WOMEN IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Two women and two men were thrown from an automobile when it tumbled into a ditch at Fourteenth street and Washington avenue, about 1 o'clock this morning. They were Mrs. Irvin Mayer, 21 years old; Mrs. May Spate, 21, and Vincent Walker, all living at 3014 Lucas avenue, and John Jasper of 7107 South Broadway. All escaped with bruises.

The machine, which was the property of Herman Dych of 3427 Juniata street, was driven by Jasper. It was wrecked. Jasper told the police he was pulling out of the car tracks and failed to see an excavation that had been dug by United Railways repair men. The hole was about two feet deep.

How to Look Years Less Than Your Age

The most aged face will look years younger after the use of ordinary mercolized wax for from ten days to two weeks. This remarkable substance, because of its peculiar absorptive power, actually removes the thin veil of faded or withered outer cuticle, a little at a time. Gradually the fresher, more youthful skin underneath is revealed. This absorption process being a purely hygienic one, an entirely natural complexion is acquired—quite different from the artificial complexion, which appears anything but girlish, though often bearing painful evidence of childishness. An ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to rejuvenate any complexion. It is put on like cold cream at bedtime, and removed mornings with warm water.

To eradicate such age marks as wrinkles and furrows, make a wash lotion by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. This has wonderful astringent and tonic properties. It quickly effaces all kinds of wrinkles, no matter how caused, making the skin firm, smooth and young looking.—ADV.

BOAST OF HIS KISSLESS RECORD GETS BACHELOR PROMPT SMACK

California Assemblyman Outwitted by Fair Lobbyist, Forced by Colleagues to Return Salute.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 24.—Assemblyman Maurice B. Browne, author of a constitutional amendment providing for a tax of $10 a year on bachelors of 30 years of age, boasted to a fair lobbyist in the House yesterday that he was 40 years old and had never been kissed except by his mother.

Immediately the lobbyist threw her arms around the neck of the Assemblyman and kissed him.

The incident occurred while the Assembly was in informal session under a call of the House, and in an instant Browne's desk was surrounded by a shouting, cheering crowd of his colleagues.

Order was thrown to the winds and under urging in which a semblance of force was used, Browne returned the kiss. He is a bachelor.

WAR TAX ON BANKS ATTACKED

Three Chicago Institutions in Suits Allege It Is Unconstitutional.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Three suits attacking the constitutionality of the war revenue act of last October, affecting the tax upon the capital stock of banks were filed in the United States District Court here yesterday. The suits were brought by the Continental and Commercial National Bank, Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, and Hibernian Banking Association.

The first bank asks for the return of $31,657.34, alleged to be taxes paid at the rate of one-tenth of 1 per cent on Federal, State and municipal bonds, and other property not used in the banking business. The other banks ask for smaller amounts of taxes. The suits are against United States Internal Revenue Commissioner W. H. Osborn and Collector Julius F. Smietanka of the local office. The suits allege that from the Federal, State and municipal character of the capital no tax can be levied.

MAN HAS 5 KNIFE WOUNDS

He Refuses to Give Information Regarding Fight to Police.

Paul Adams, a roofer, 41 years old, of 1211 Chambers street, was found at Ninth and Warren streets about 11 o'clock last night, suffering from five knife wounds in the head and chest. He told the police not to ask him for any information as he would "settle the affair" himself. He was taken to the city hospital.

The police learned Adams had quarreled with two brothers living at Eleventh and Hebert streets and they are being sought.

D'ANNUNZIO, ITALIAN POET, WANTS TO SERVE IN ARMY

ROME, April 24.—Gabriel D'Annunzio, the poet, will go to Quarto Sant 'Elena, on the island of Sardinia, and near Genoa, May 5, to attend the ceremonies connected with the unveiling of a monument memorializing the departure from there of the men who helped Garibaldi free Italy.

If Italy enters the war it is reported D'Annunzio will ask permission to serve in the navy. He has said that at the battle off the Island of Lissa on July 20, 1866, in which the Austrians defeated the Italians, an Austrian historian was permitted to go aboard the flagship to describe Italy's defeat and now he wishes to be in the same position to write Italy's victory.

The unveiling of the monument at Quarto is assuming the proportions of a great patriotic event which is especially significant at the present time.

King Victor Emmanuel will preside at the ceremony. Gold medals will be distributed to the survivors of the Garibaldian expedition. All the 22 universities in the kingdom will be represented, as well as patriotic and political organizations.

TELLS OF ELOPING 25,000 MILES; IS BRIDE OF ANOTHER

Woman Who Ran Away With $105,000 Embezzler Forgiven and Wed by William Munson.

FASCINATED BY BANKER

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 24.—"They say "the road to hell is paved with good intentions." When I ran away with Ralph Lovell, throwing over the man who had loved me truly for five years, and the only man I have ever loved, my intentions were good. They led me to hell.

"Fascinated by the wealth and personality of Ralph; charmed by the thought of a home of my own after years of slaving here for a living, I yielded to his ardent pleading. Without marriage I sailed on the same ship with him, lived at the same hotels and then in a leased villa. And I got out of it nothing but torture."

Thus Mrs. Lillian Camp Munson summed up the story of her elopement with Ralph Edward Lovell just after he had embezzled $105,000 or more from the First National Bank of Edgewater, N. J. Lovell was 22; she, by her own statement, was 28.

It was after the escapade with Lovell that William Munson married her. He has just had her released on $5000 bail. She was arrested in San Francisco and brought east on an indictment charging her with aiding and abetting the embezzlement.

Smiles as She Tells Story.

She told the story of her "25,000-mile elopement" with no trace of embarrassment, and no noticeable recognition of criticism attaching itself to her because of it. She smiled frequently as she recalled incidents of her life with Lovell, and she frankly said that her one regret was the disagreeable notoriety the affair was bringing to Munson's family.

"My father and mother are dead," she said. "I have no brothers or sisters. I came to New York eight or nine years ago and made my living through drawing and painting. An artists' life is no bed of roses.

"I met Ralph Lovell. He was a fascinating boy. His wealth and his flattery and his attention just swept me off my feet. He lavished money upon me. I rode in taxis where before I had walked. I dined in the gayest and most expensive restaurants. He showered me with gifts and attentions. Then he proposed to me that I go to South America with him.

"I refused, but he pleaded with ardor. He told me of his love. He pictured a home of our own together in some quiet town. My life had been hard. The temptation offered of a home of my own just swept me off my feet. I saw the chance for wealth, husband, home and travel and I took it. I never thought of the cost. I forgot all about the love of my sweetheart Bill, who had loved me five years, and whom I was then getting ready to marry. I left with Ralph."

"Too much of that Kipling stuff," interposed "Bill" (Muson), who had just entered the room.

"He thinks I'm too crazy about Kipling," explained Mrs. Munson. "Bill, you'll never be able to stand that 'Breener, cleaner land' stuff again, will you?"

Her Fault They Didn't Wed.

"That he did not marry me before we sailed was really my fault as much as his. Both of us were just too busy, right up to the time we went on board.

"Now, I want this understood. I knew nothing about his embezzlement, and never suspected it until I got back after the trip. I thought he was very wealthy. He had told me so. I never asked him where he got his money. I never thought about it.

"I want this understood, too, I never led him on to his ruin. He was going the pace before he ever saw me—throwing his money around, giving wine parties, entertaining women.

"I tried to make a man out of him. I wanted to marry him and make a home for us both. I am older than he, but my influence over him was good, not bad.

"We sailed and he began drinking on the boat. Three days out his drunkenness had so disgusted me that I could hardly stand him. I knew three days after we left here that he had no intention of marrying me. Yes, I talked to him about it. He wouldn't marry me. We landed in Colon, and both of us were ill. We took a train to Panama and stayed there 10 days. Then we took a steamer to Lima and we stayed there 10 days. From Lima we sailed to Buenos Aires and rented a villa.

"We lived ther together six weeks and then I could stand it no longer and he finally gave me passage money back home. I went to Rio by myself and sailed for New York, arriving here Sept. 11.

Wanted Woman for Nurse.

"What had I got out of it all? Torture and a few junk pieces of jewelry and a few clothes that wore out easily.

"I don't believe Ralph ever loved me. If I hadn't gone with him I think he would have got some other pretty woman. I think he wanted the companionship of a pretty woman to take care of him and nurse him. That's just what I was most of the time—his nurse. I went down on my knees to that boy to beg him to stop drinking.

"How he threw his money away! Champagne dinners, diamonds for women, enormous tips to waiters—the rose-colored path for him, as hard as he could hit it! He had $27,000 in cash and he must have spent nearly all.

"But, drunk as he almost always was, he never told me of his defalcation. The only hint he gave me was on the night before I left him, when he said: 'Lil, when you get back to New York you will hear something about me that will make you wish you had never met me.'

"I repeat I don't believe he ever loved me, for when I threatened to leave him several times he retorted: 'You can go to New York or hell, just as you choose.'

"But I have no ill feeling against him. When he gets out of this he will still be young enough to make a man of himself and have his real life before him. As for me, I love my husband and we are going to be happy."

SCHWIND ADMITS HE'S GERMAN

Charge That He Fired La Touraine Dropped; Held as Spy.

PARIS, April 24.—Raymond Ruff Schwind, who has gone under the name of Raymond Swoboda, now admits that he is a German subject according to The Matin.

The inquiry conducted by Maj. Julien of the Paris permanent courtmartial has revealed that Schwind was sentenced at Shanghai several years ago by the German consular court to two years' imprisonment. He is said to have been transferred from China to Germany where he served his sentence. The Matin asserts Schwind was unable to deny that he had been in prison. Schwind, who claimd to be an American citizen, was arrested on suspicion of being responsible for the fire aboard the steamship La Touraine, but this charge against him has been dropped, although he is still accused of espionage by the military authorities.

SUFFERED 15 YEARS WITH PSORIASIS

Weeks at a Time in Such Misery Did Not Get a Night's Rest. Used Cuticura. In 18 Weeks Entirely Well.

107 N. Mesaba Ave., Virginia, Minn.—"Since I was fourteen years of age I suffered with psoriasis. I was suffering for fifteen years. For the first nine or ten years it would come and go but each appearance would be longer and more severe until it refused to leave at all until I got so bad that I could not do any work. At times there was not a place on my entire body, excepting my face and hands that was not covered. Weeks at a time I would be in such misery that I did not get a night's rest. My body was covered with shiny white scales and under them was as red and inflamed as blood. They would crack open some half an inch in length.

"My husband was telling a friend of the condition I was in, and he too had been a sufferer of the same trouble and had been healed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I at once commenced the treatment. In eighteen weeks I was entirely well." (Signed) Mrs. Edwin Mitchell, June 22, 1914.

If Women Only Knew

In many ways woman's daily toil wears on the kidneys, and if attacks of backache, dizziness, nervousness and despondency are frequent she ought to suspect that her kidneys are out of order and that it is not some "woman's trouble."

Besides using a first-class kidney remedy, however, the patient ought to be sensible and stop for a while the every-day habits that hurt the kidneys. Avoid heavy eating, especially meat. Susbtitute water and milk for tea and coffee. Stop worrying and working too hard. Get some light outdoor exercise, such as walking, and plenty of rest and sleep.

Doan's Kidney Pills contain no dangerous or habit-forming drugs. This remedy is successfully used and recommended all over the civilized world. St. Louis women publicly endorse them.

St. Louis Testimony:

Mrs. H. Deuel, 3636 Finney Av., says: "I had a very serious sickness several years ago. I was laid up in bed, suffering intense pain. No matter which way I turned, I was in misery. My husband was about to call in a physician, but I made up my mind to try Doan's Kidney Pills. In less than a week, this remedy had me up and around and one box was enough to make a complete cure. I have never had a sign of the trouble since."

Learn to save heating dollars!

If you were getting 4% interest on your savings deposit and another bank offered you 10% to change your account, what would you do? Would you put it off? Certainly not! Why therefore do you cling to the reckless fuel wastes, the health risks, and the replacement bills of old fashioned heating devices, when you can begin at once to save far more than 10% in heating dollars by investing in a big dividend-paying outfit of

AMERICAN RADIATORS & IDEAL BOILERS

Each Spring and Fall, in the renting and buying seasons, the public is showing a fast-increasing preference for buildings that are radiator heated, having learned from experience, or from neighbors' use, that these ideal heating outfits do far more than any other material feature of the building to make it a genial, healthful, convenient, cleanly place in which to live and work. Besides, they are big-paying investments because of the many strong economies their use brings about.

They unfailingly guarantee comfort.—and at a minimum outlay. They earn their cost! If all the people knew, after a year's trial, of the comforts, the lessened coal bills, doctor bills, repair bills, cleaning bills, and the saving in labor, fire protection, absence of blackening, rusting, storing, etc., no one would be willing to go back to old fashioned heating. Did you ever hear of anyone going back to other ways of heating once they tried our way? They will tell you their investment in IDEAL-AMERICAN outfit pays far higher than 10% in reducing the cost of living.

A No. 1-22-W IDEAL Boiler and 400 ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators costing the owner $190 were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include costs of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which vary according to climatic and other conditions.

If you now own, or are about to buy or rent, you owe it to yourself to use that same shrewdness and foresightedness in planning, buying or leasing as taught by ablest Builders and Real Estate men everywhere; that is, put in an IDEAL-AMERICAN outfit now—at present most favorable prices—iron prices now rule lowest in 10 years past—and in these dull months you get the services of the most skilled Fitters. Don't be caught unprepared another Winter—investigate now.

Call your dealer on the phone today and get his estimate. It will surprise you how well within reach is the price—and in the years to follow you'll enjoy perfect comfort and learn to save heating dollars that will repay you many times the original investment if the building stands as long as the outfit lasts. Can you make your money do more? Act now! Ask for free catalog, "Ideal Heating."

The fire in an IDEAL Boiler need not be rekindled in an entire heating season. One charging of coal easily lasts through the longest zero night. They change a house into a home.

An unfailing, stationary Vacuum Cleaner—in sizes now at $150 up!

You should know about our ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner, for dustless, complete cleaning of rooms, furnishings, etc. Sits in basement or side room and cleans through iron suction pipe running to each floor. Easily put in OLD buildings. Fully GUARANTEED. Lasts as long as the building—like radiator heating. Send for catalog.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

St. Louis Needs a Parkway.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have been visiting in St. Louis for some time and am surprised at the opposition to the parkway. Of all cities in the United States, St. Louis needs one most—being an inland city—which has not lakes, ocean, mountains, or watering places near by, it must have some attraction and such an attraction would help St. Louis greatly. I had the opinion St. Louis was a rich city. What would $10,000,000 be to provide such a great enterprise and do away with such an unsightly strip of property. Your city should also beautify the river front with miles of drives and have grand boulevards on the river. It is time your people would wake up, if you want a million population, and what is more, keep them. Let everybody work for the parkway, which will give St. Louis a new lease of life, and she will be more respected by other cities for her progressiveness.

MRS. ALMA GLENN.

Fairground Swimming Pool.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

Reading a suggestion in your paper by J. C. Meyers, of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps, in regards to having a quick drainage and refilling system at the Fairground swimming pool, I wish to state a few more good changes. There should be a continuous flow of water from a six-inch or larger pipe to drain off the foul matter from the surface.

River Front Improvement.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In carefully looking over the different features brought out in the "Future St. Louis Exhibit" of the Municipal Plan Commission, there seems to be one most vital thing missing and that is a definite, concise, practical plan for the improvement of the river front. The Plan Commission's treatise on the river front improvement consists of nothing more than vague generalities and, with no definite plan for immediate action, it is clear that another year is to be wasted in temporizing.

It seems that the engineering problems involved in the river front improvement, especially that part between the Municipal and Eads Bridge, are too much for the local engineers and architects, otherwise fixed plans would have been evolved within the past 10 years. The majority of the difficulties, however, are, in fact, trivial and there is absolutely no obstacle that is unsurmountable; in fact, the basic improvements that should be made at once are not only remarkably simple but what is equally important, they are low in cost.

In order to stimulate interest and bring the river front improvement to an issue at once, I would respectfully suggest a competitive prize, sufficiently large to enlist the interest of the best engineering and architectural minds on the subject, for the best plans and suggestions for an immediate river front improvement. The points that govern the contest should be.

1. Practicability.
2. Economy.
3. Adaptability of plan to increase river traffic, both passenger and freight.
4. Making an easy access to the wharves to vehicle traffic and pedestrians.
5. Beauty.

The funds necessary to carry out the competition could probably be obtained through co-operation of the different improvement associations and public-spirited organizations of the city.

The competition should be open to all.

There is absolutely not a single valid reason that can be proposed why the river front, near the Eads Bridge, should continue to remain an eyesore and a disgrace to St. Louis. I have such an absolute confidence in the hustle, public spirit and bigness of this city that right now its citizens are going to get busy on this all-important feature.

The wharf construction can be accomplished by the unit system, that is, the construction can be gradual, one block or two blocks to be improved at a time and each block consisting of a harmonious writ that can become a consonant part of the entire improvement when all the units have been completed and joined.

THE TWELFTH STREET PLAZA.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by
J. H. GUNDLACH,
Former President of the City Council.

Is the threatened abandonment of Twelfth street going to result in adding another to the number of St. Louis' lost opportunities in city planning? Shall we plead guilty to the charge of using up our energies in telling what we propose to do only to show a faint heart when it comes to the constructive work? Are we going to jog as heretofore along lines of least resistance as determined by petty self-interest, or are we going to hew open lines of contact and a few inspiring vistas that will give us that arterial life and metropolitan polish so indispensable to the prosperity of a large population center?

The opening of Lindell-Locust connection was secured only after the strongest opposition from its inception to the adoption of the commissioner's report by the Circuit Court. Its value to traffic is incalculable and resulted immediately in injecting new life into the old bones of the neighborhood. The proposed widening of Washington avenue, west of Jefferson, was fought step by step up to its present stage and is still far from accomplishment, though an essential necessity of our future arterial life, as it is likewise the only hope of interested property owners to dispel the hopelessness of present conditions.

Some years ago, before large buildings encumbered the north corners of Twelfth street and Washington avenue, the Board of Public Improvements recommended the abandonment of the proposed widening of Twelfth street north to Cass avenue because the city had no means to pay the city's share of the expense, though the commissioners had not yet been appointed to fix the city's proportion. The plan of connecting the north end with the heart of the city by a great north and south thoroughfare was met by an interested property owner with the statement that St. Louis was a manufacturing city and that they who wanted to see beauty should cross the seas and visit Paris. And so they do, only that some American cities are offering sight-seeing opportunities closer home.

The widening of North Twelfth street would have been of inestimable value to the central and northern parts of the city. Today its accomplishment is almost prohibitory because of the new buildings since erected. The proposed widening of Twelfth street south offers a rare chance for tying up South St. Louis with the center through a plaza-like thoroughfare that will present great possibilities of use and treatment for the future city. When you recall that there is no continuous line thoroughfare from the center of the city to South St. Louis between Broadway on the east and Jefferson avenue on the west, the importance of a direct and wide arterial traffic way reaching southward becomes apparent. To abandon the proposed widening would mean to draw the south line of the center of the city at the south line of Market street and tend to discourage the free development of the district contiguous to Twelfth street south of Market street.

If the Parkway is built, the picture will suffer when, on coming east to Twelfth street, the harmony of the intersection will be disturbed by the projection on the southeast corner or so-called Peper property. Compare the present picture with that of a continued Twelfth street south of Market as it is now north of that. Fancy its value to the stranger coming into our city! But we are told none of the property owners on the line of the proposed widening will admit their property will be benefited by the proposed improvement. Of course they won't. The vision of the average property owner does not extend beyond the opposite side of the street. He sees immediate interests and not future or public interests. The intricate maze of jogs and disappearing streets in St. Louis bears testimony to this view. Every subdivider considered the number of front feet he could put on the market for sale of more importance than conforming to a rational adherence to street lines and transportation requirements. The physical extension of the city was not marked by vision of enlarged requirements of a growing community, but in most cases by the assertiveness of private over public needs. The most humiliating thing about it is the fact that the city hall O K'd it.

I venture the opinion that the southeast corner of Twelfth and Market streets (the Peper property) held as it is in a large lot, will be worth more, minus the 40 feet to be taken, fronting on a 150-foot wide Twelfth street, than it is now with the street at its present width. This applies also to all of the lots on the east side of Twelfth street as far south as Spruce street, except, of course, the northeast corner of Twelfth and Clark avenue, which will be taken almost entirely in the proposed improvement. The only other serious damage to a lot fronting on the street is to the southwest corner of Twelfth and Clark, which will be taken almost entirely.

Some say the territory south of Market street has little future. It never will have unless you encourage it to get into the spotlight. Our street lines have disjointed North and South St. Louis. There are not over two continuous street intersections for more than three blocks on Washington avenue between Twelfth street and Jefferson avenue. Some of our people shrug their shoulders in contempt at thought of a City Beautiful, though the proposed widening of Twelfth street is more in the interest of rational demands aside from beauty. And yet beauty is the one tongue that speaks all languages. It has been the greatest asset of Paris since it was Hausmanized. It revitalized Kansas City from a state of bankruptcy and hopelessness. It breathes the spirit of youth and joy of life. Chicago in pursuance of its stupendous conception of the future is blazing Michigan avenue through from Randolph street to Chicago avenue at a cost of over $8,000,000. Steps for a wide Twelfth street boulevard from the lake to the city limits are under way.

Let us also do something worth the notice of those without our city by building the parkway and bringing the picture to a harmonious terminus at Twelfth street.

The economic lessons which can be drawn from the Future City Exhibit at the city hall teach us the value of building cities well and with thought of the future rather than by the rule of shoddy and to serve only immediate wants.

MAYOR KIEL'S MESSAGE.

The message sent by Mayor Kiel to the first St. Louis Board of Aldermen was excellent in tone.

Cumulative evidence of its progressive spirit is found in its recommendations for the parkway plan, bridge and river terminal projects, the efficiency merit system, free employment and legal aid bureaus under municipal auspices, permanent municipal lodging house, increased support for city eleemosynary institutions and recreation grounds. These features are in accord with advanced principles looking to more highly developed functions of usefulness in American city government.

Its adequacy is gratifying in a public document that may become locally historical as the first executive message of a period that opens with the completion of the new and more perfect charter machinery. It will deepen the impression as to Mr. Kiel's satisfactory qualities as a constructive, responsive magistrate whose ideas show growth as his experience with practical city problems lengthen.

WELL DONE, GOV. MAJOR.

Gov. Major's appointment of former Judge Eugene McQuillin to the place on the State Public Service Commission vacated by Frank Wightman is good from several standpoints.

Judge McQuillin is a Republican, and his selection to fill the place of a Republican without requirement by law is an excellent nonpartisan precedent. It divides the commission politically.

The appointee is a St. Louisan and this city, which has greater municipal public utility interests than all the rest of the State, is given deserved representation on the commission.

In Judge McQuillin Gov. Major has selected the type of man who gives promise of exceptional usefulness. His judicial training and experience should be valuable in the work of the commission.

A CASE WITH A CORONET.

The contestants' claim that a duchess—if not a really truly duchess, at least the wife of a duke—is the real mother of the innocent and admirable heroine, breathes still more romance into our destined-to-be-famous will case. Nothing adds so much distinction to a contest for millions as a coronet. The coronet crowns the opus, as it were, and the opulence. It is the touch of perfect elegance. Mark Twain understood the romantic appeal of royal rank to the humble snobbery of honest home-folks when he created the claimants in his immortal will case a King and a Duke.

Irrespective of the case's merits whatever, and from a mere human standpoint, we may permissibly delight at the glint of a coronet in the background, and sniff the perfume of royal atmosphere. Our fancy quickened, we are tempted to add an opera singer and some race horses to the dramatis personae; a roulette wheel, a scandal, to the plot, with the dissolute son of an Earl disowned and a beautiful Gypsy darkling up-stage. So much goes with a coronet besides the eight golden strawberry leaves that signify the ducal rank.

If lawyers were really imaginative or inventive and a court were conducted solely as a place of public entertainment instead of a forum of pure justice, there would be no end of fictional or dramatic possibilities to a case revealing a coronet—duels, abductions, kidnapings, elopements, serenades, sorties, frays on the drawbridge, drownings in the moat, a silken ladder to the tower window, and moonlight over all. Shades of Ouida and Walter Scott, Stanley Weyman and Charlotte M. Braeme!

But a forum of plain fact and a case of nude truth often possess an interest or diversion beyond fact in dress of fancy or truth in masquerade—for, as Byron observed.

"'Tis strange, but true; for truth is always strange—Stranger than fiction."

UNREAL ESTATE AGENTS.

An unreal estate agent is one who does business in insecurities and forges ahead somehow until he can read his title clear to the penitentiary.

An unreal estate agent is about the densest chump—using the noun in its literalness signifying chunk or block of wood—that ever accused, tried, convicted and sent himself to the penitentiary. For he deliberately and painstakingly records his crime beforehand where it must certainly be discovered to his undoing and punishment. He would be no bigger chump if he voluntarily presented himself at police headquarters and asked to be photographed and have his thumb-prints taken for future reference.

The unreal estate of an unreal estate agent consists of a hole into which he gets himself deeper and deeper. He can neither get out of the hole nor pull it in after him to hide, but can always be found in it helpless and waiting patiently for the authorities wherever the hue and cry is raised.

This seems to be a good time to quit the unreal estate business in St. Louis—if possible. It seems to have been overdone; it is overcrowded; failures have been out of proportion to profits. If there are any ambitious young men undecided as to the choice of a business and contemplating engaging in this one, recent developments should give them pause.

MANICURING AT THE ST. LOUIS CLUB.

Oh, rather give me commentators plain,
Who from the dark and doubtful love to run
—George Crabbe.

We have only the simplest of obvious conclusions to draw and the plainest comment to make upon the recent refinement of club life at the St. Louis Club, as evinced by this notice to members:

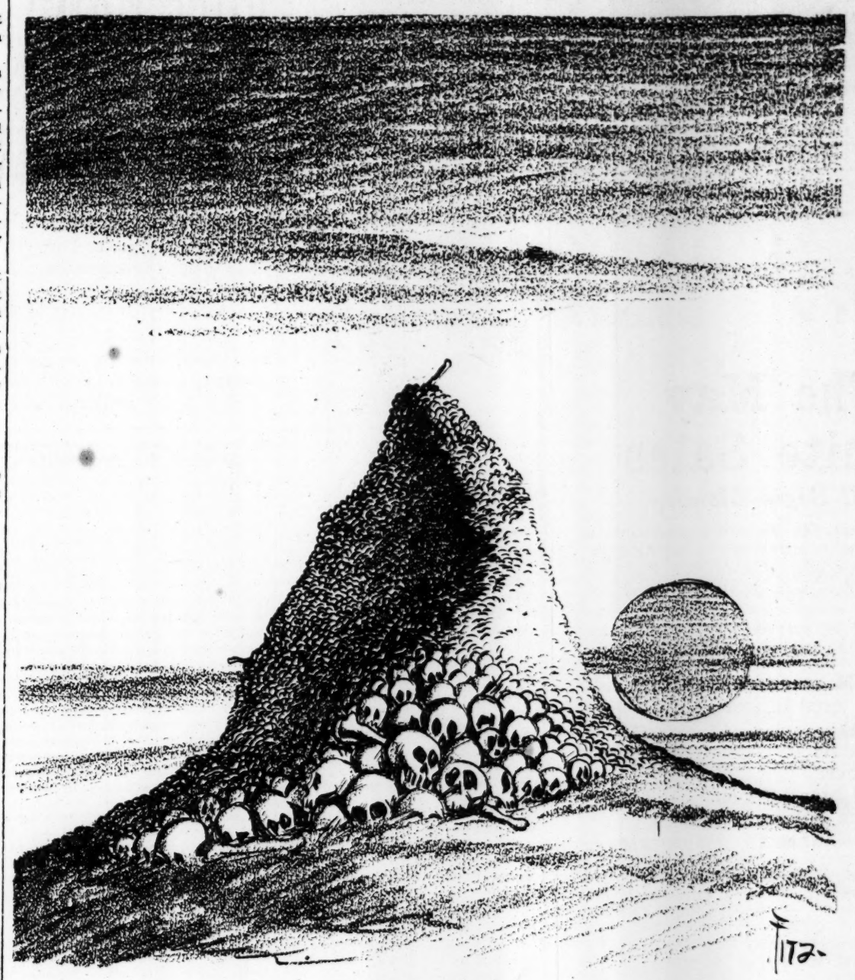

ST. LOUIS CLUB.

FOR THE CONVENIENCE OF THE MEMBERS, ARRANGEMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR THE SERVICES OF AN EFFICIENT MANICURIST SATURDAY AFTERNOONS AND SUNDAY MORNINGS.

HOURS—
SATURDAYS, 2 p. m. to 8 p. m.
SUNDAYS, 9 a. m. to 1 p. m.

HOUSE COMMITTEE.
APRIL 21, 1915.

Doubtless the club has turned its bartender into a manicure on Saturday evenings and Sabbath morns—a civilizing example we commend to all clubs.

JUST A MINUTE

THE FIRST STRAW OF SUMMER.

I.

IT was the first straw of Summer—
Made white white by the sun;
I looked for another—
There was but the one.
The young man who wore it
Was angrily eyed,
Bue he openly bore it
With obvious pride.

II.

WITH that sign of Summer
The weathercock veered,
And the exquisite drummer
Looked hot in his beard.
I thought of my own hat,
A pretty conceit,
And ah! but the groan that Went up from the street.

III.

IT was the first straw of Summer
At eighty degrees,
And he beat us all to it
As slick as you please.
He left us few comforts,
But still there was one—
He was, for a venture,
The weather man's son.

ABOUT THE FARMER'S BIBLE.

Nine hundred and fifty pounds of Sears & Roebuck catalogs arrived at the Brunswick postoffice Tuesday morning for the distribution among the farmers and others of this community. Although a dollar spent with Sears & Roebuck never gets back on this side of the Mississippi River; although their goods may not be as good as could be bought right here at home for the same money, there's one thing Sears & Roebuck know,—they know the way to get business is to go after it with advertising—hence the thousands upon thousands of dollars they spend in printing these immense catalogs and mailing them to every town in the United States. Yes, they know it pays to advertise.—Missouri Brunswicker.

Mrs. Homebody (who has been reading how someone committed embezzlement by bailee): Is this some special way of getting into the penitentiary?

Mr. Homebody: No, I think not. The difference, judging by the sentence in this case, is that when you embezzle by bailee you go right in and turn around and come right out again.

AMONG THE SODAPOPS.

An eight-gallon barrel of beer was unloaded at Guthrie Saturday, which the depot agent placed in the wareroom until the owner called for it. Sometime during the night someone bored a hole into the barrel from under the side, and, placing a tub under it, drained the barrel of its contents and made away with it.—Warrenton (Mo.) Banner.

"Do you think our modern Hercules will clean the Augean Barnes?" he asked.

They were after him, but he was gone.

Q. Were you ever a boss, Mr. Roosevelt?
A. I was, but not of that type.
Q. What type then?
A. You might say an Italic. (Roar of laughter).

Tuberculosis costs St. Louis $32,000,000 a year. Possibly Mr. Player, who has nothing for the fight on it in his budget, is not the economist we sometimes think.

THE STAR WITNESS.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BEAUTY CULTURE.

E. L. M.—To reduce flesh, reduce diet. Take exercise. Avoid sweets, eggs, cream, fat meats and especially potatoes. Live mainly on lettuce, spinach, cabbage, lean meats, young onions, celery, tomatoes, etc. Take salted toast instead of bread and butter. If you cease to give your body fat-making foods you will cease creating fat cells. It is no trick to reduce if you practice self-denial.

J. W. H.—Gowland's lotion: Jordan or sweet almonds, 1 oz.; bitter almonds, ½ oz. Soak them in water, remove the skins and mash them to a pulp in a mortar; add water by trituration to make a pint of emulsion. Add to this mercurial chloride, 15 grains, dissolved in a fluid oz. alcohol and 2 fluid oz. glycerin; mix well together. (May be applied to scars. Any capable druggist can prepare this lotion for you.)

DELPHINE.—As to massage for eye wrinkles, a beauty writer says: "Don't." The muscles, nerves and skin under the eyes are very delicate and sensitive. The skin is elastic and easily stretched into more lines. Don't massage that area, but very gently pat cold cream or olive or cocoanut oil into the tissues, using a featherweight lightness of touch. Some beauty specialists apply oil or cream to that part of the face literally with a feather, others with cotton or a silk sponge, fearing the effect of the lightest finger weight.

ETIQUETTE.

X. Y. Z.—You would be foolish to pay a minister a larger marriage fee than you can afford. Five dollars would be enough if you are a poor man, even though the minister has a wealthy congregation. Some poor men have employed a Justice of the Peace and have been just as happy as if wedded in the "swell" crowd of a big church. Marriage is a serious matter and early economy is important.

HEALTH HINTS.

XX.—Rose water is of no advantage to the eyes. Don't put anything in the eyes except with competent advice.

ANXIOUS.—These exercises for sagging abdomen are described by Dr. Evans in the Chicago Tribune: Boards 8 feet long and 2 feet wide were provided. At one end of the board were leather straps for the feet. The boards were placed with one end on the floor and the other on a box two feet above the floor. The exercisers lay on the boards with their heads at the elevated end. The first exercises consisted in raising the legs to the vertical position, or as near as they could. This was repeated a number of times. Then the feet were put in the straps, and the exercises consisted in raising the body to the sitting posture. This was repeated a number of times. Then the board was reversed, the footstrap end now became the head end. The exercisers took position on the boards with the heads low and the feet high. They went through the same exercises as when in the other position. These exercises gave tone to the muscles needed to hold the abdominal organs in position. Furthermore, the latter half (with the head low) tended to push the displaced organs back into the positions from which they had been displaced.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

SUBSCRIBER.—The most satisfactory method of imparting a perfume properly to personal apparel is to fill small china silk bags with Florentine orris root, and lay around in dresser and chiffonier drawers; in trunks and boxes and among stationery. It takes only a short while to impregnate the wood and all that is kept in these receptacled with this delicate yet lasting perfume.

BUTTER.—"I have never, to my knowledge, tasted oleomargarine," said Senator Ingalls, "but I have stood in the presence of genuine butter with awe for its strength and reverence for its antiquity." To sweeten strong butter: Cut into thin slices and pile loosely in churn (barrel churn is best), cover with new milk and let stand over night. In morning churn it in the milk for a while, then draw off milk and wash and salt butter same as if newly churned. If butter was very strong, you may have to repeat process, using fresh milk. For very small amount of butter, of course, pan or bowl would do instead of churn. The butter will be as nice and sweet as when fresh.

LAW POINTS.

L. G.—Notary acknowledgment is not necessary for will.

OLD SUB.—Circus license $200, and $50 a day for each day in excess of a week. No tax on the parade.

J. A. B.—You can submit the bond to Comptroller as to it being genuine if issued by city. If elsewhere have some stock broker investigate for you.

A. Z.—Have a talk with the Prosecuting Attorney, Municipal Courts Building, about the brewery that keeps your husband drunk. Write to "Answers" what the answer is.

REX.—Whether a stranger to you or not, records at city hall should be consulted as to a possible chattel mortgage on the auto or graphophone. The bill of sale would not protect you from such as may be of record, or against adverse ownership.

INQUIRER.—To void the policy on life of a person who has committed suicide the company must prove the insured contemplated suicide at time he took out the policy. This is almost impossible and the statute is a sore spot to the companies.

M. M.—All you could do is to sue him for the $5 balance; but that would hardly pay you, judging from facts you state, and we advise accepting weekly $1 payments. If he returns instrument to you voluntarily, sell it and give him difference over the balance due you.

SUBSCRIBER. — Landlord having served you with notice to vacate would not excuse you from liability for rent covered by such notice; even though you moved in middle of month you would be liable for remainder and double rent for every day you hold over the time your tenancy ceased. The notice given you day before rent date was proper and binding if same was in writing, which fact you failed to state.

E. J. W.—Your friend can arrange for a new loan, probably, with bank in the Illinois town where he resides and property is located. If successful in doing so you can send on your papers at proper time (of which you will be informed) through some bank here, who will see to its collection, making a small charge. We do not think you will succeed in disposing of the Illinois mortgage in St. Louis and if so then only at a big discount.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDUCATION.—University of Kansas is at Lawrence, Kan.

Morie.—Residence for divorce in Texas and Nevada, 6 months.

CLETA.—Write Civil Service, 3d and Olive, St. Louis, for full information.

BUNGALOW.—Asbestos or mineral wool might do for filling wall between plastering and siding, if filling must be done from attic.

R. C. M. O.—For information as to Missouri Rifle Association, see Sec. C. C. Crosaman, at Skinner & Kennedy's, 312 N. Broadway.

C. B. R.—"County seat" is more used. The Standard Dictionary says of site: Local, U. S., same as seat, especially in the term county site for county seat.

STAGE.—Gypsy fortune teller: Wear a red skirt (ankle length), a thin white blouse, a black velvet bolero with little coins dangling around the edge, high-heeled shoes and black stockings. Wear the hair parted and in two long plaits.

The Flour Box

"Stingy" Uncle Graves decides to place a nest egg somewhere and chooses the emptiest receptacle.

By Elizabeth Schoen Cobb.

MYRA GAINES was singing like a lark—and why? She had just seen her husband turn into the street leading to the cottage gate.

Meanwhile the tears were in her eyes and her pretty lips twitched and puckered, despite her strong efforts to smile—reason: She though it unworthy of the bride of a year to show any emotion except complete happiness to a husband who fairly worshiped the ground she trod on.

The face of Elwyn Gaines was serious and troubled as he approached home. He was thoughtful and abstracted, so much the latter that he did not observe that a wiry, alert youngster, one Sammy Jones, was keeping close to him in a way that showed he did not wish to be noticed.

As he struck the garden path Elwyn brightened up. The sound of singing caused a magic change in his disturbed face. He braced up, he tried to assume a brisk, gladsome air. He burst buoyantly into the kitchen where Myra stood at the table and clasped her waist and kissed her and announced boisterously:

"Well, I saw Uncle Graves safe to the depot, all right."

"I hope he enjoyed his stay with us," murmured Myra.

"Said he'd had the best time in his life," declared Elwyn. "Why, Myra, you've been crying!" and he stared dolorously into her eyes.

"I—I peeled some onions," she lamely explained.

"Yes, hours ago, for dinner. See here, Myra, my uncle"——

"Our uncle," corrected Myra.

"Well, I am afraid you are sort of disappointed."

"Why should I be, dear?"

The Empty Pantry.

TO be plain, Myra, I think you have reason to be. Uncle Graves is odd and all that, and I am no beggar, but he must have seen that with my being out of work we are pretty well pinched. You have had to turn all kinds of hard corners to make things appear comfortable. He might have given you some kind of a little present. Frankly, I expected it, and I don't want you to think my relatives are mean and stingy."

"Uncle Graves!" exclaimed Myra, "Oh, no, dear. I really enjoyed his company. I will say truthfully that I hoped he would help you along a trifle until you got work again. But maybe he has troubles and is hiding them just like ourselves.

"Well, maybe, assented Elwyn dubiously, "but I always thought he had plenty of means."

"He must lead a lonely life," went on Myra sympathizingly. "Then, too, he has been so disappointed in that nephew of his, Bruce Wayne, who has gone to the bad utterly, they say."

"His worthless heir!" commented Elywn a trifle bitterly.

"Why he told me that once when Wayne was mad with drink and pestered with gambling debts, he told some chums he hoped uncle would die soon, so he could have plenty of money to spend. So, you see, poor uncle has not a very happy time of it."

"I am very glad you take it that way," said Elywn. "I was caring only for your disappointment."

"I am the happiest woman in the world with you by my side!" declared Myra brightly. "Now then, to get down to practical everyday life, sir! Put on an apron and help me get the table cloths and napkins we borrowed from mother ready to do up."

"U—um!" observed Elywn, glancing in at the pantry. "Not much left to go on, eh, dear? Sugar—pretty low. Flour—why, there isn't more than two bakings left," and Elyn snapped open and then snapped shut the flour box near the open window.

The Eavesdropper.

WELL, by the time two bakings are over and done with you may be back at work and all kinds of good fortune come to us!" chirped Myra hopefully. Come, sir, to work with your down-trodden, abused helpmeet! You dearest, dearest darling!" and Myra gave him a kiss that echoed through the house, and both pitched into the work before them as if it was jovial fun.

Crouched under an open side window, wide awake and safely sheltered, Sammy Jones listened intently to all that had been spoken within the house. Now he darted away. He made for the railroad depot. There, his train gone, and half hiding in a shadowed corner, was artful Uncle Graves.

"Well," he challenged. "did you earn that dollar?"

"I've tried to," answered Sammy and proceeded to detail all that he had overheard at the cottage.

Uncle Graves chuckled serenely. Then he took a package from his pocket. For two minutes there was a low-whispered conversation between the precious twain. Uncle Graves gave the package and definite instructions to his youthful fellow plotter. Off darted Sammy, radiant and excited

"I think I will make some hot biscuits for supper," announced Myra at the cottage an hour later. "There's some of the honey left and it will taste good. Mercy!"

Myra uttered a sharp scream, Elwyn rushed into the pantry to find her staring down into the flour box.

There lay a package. It bore the inscription: "For my dear niece, Myra." She, trembling with excitement, Elwyn half guessing and eager as he opened it, the eyes of both dilated to their widest.

There were 10 crisp new 20-dollar bills and a note. It was signed Uncle Graves and it ran:

"To Elwyn and Myra."

THIS will be placed by an amissary where you will be sure to find it. That emissary is hired to report to me how you regard stingy old Uncle Graves after I leave. Because I know your good heart, I am able to anticipate a favorable report and have prepared a little present, as you see. If the dear boy does not get work by the time this is used up, write me and I will see to things."

"Grand old Uncle Graves!" voted Elwyn gratefully. "He stopped over a train to carry out this little plot. The second train has gone, or I'd run after him to tell him what happiness he has bestowed upon us."

The cycle of good luck once started, things seem to move all one way. At least Elwyn and Myra found this to be true. Elwyn got work the next day. The little nest egg left in the flour box became the sure start of a promising bank account.

To add to all the right royal fortune that had come to them, in about a month Uncle Graves made them a flying visit.

"I am on a trip to get that graceless nephew of mine out of trouble again," he explained. "I think I will check his mad career this time, though."

Elwyn looked inquisitive and Myra interested.

"I shall tell him that at the end of each year I live he will get a thousand dollars, provided he has behaved himself. That will make it to his interest to help prolong my life, see? If I die, he gets nothing, I've made a new will leaving what I have to"——

There was a merry twinkle in the eyes of Uncle Graves. He feigned to forget. Then he laboriously consulted his note book.

Betty Vincent's Advice to Lovers

Men Should Be Fair.

A MAN should not be too ready to think a girl likes him only for what he can give her. There are girls of that sort, I am sorry to say. But I do not believe they are so numerous as some cynical young men think.

BETTY VINCENT

A girl is always at a certain disadvantage in a friendship with a man. She cannot do a number of perfectly natural, simple things for fear people (including the young man) suspect her of "running after" him. Consequently, if he loses his position, or for some other reason his expenditures are curtailed, she cannot go to him and say, "Never mind—I like you just as much." A fiancee may do this but not a friend. Nevertheless, the man should give her the benefit of the doubt and assume that he is liked for himself until she lets him understand otherwise.

"R. E." writes:

"As this is the first year that I have received callers, I should like to send invitations to my gentlemen friends. Will you publish some suitable form of invitation?"

There is no form of invitation suitable for a girl to employ in asking a man to call on her, because she should not ask him. Her mother may do it, or he may take the initiative and ask if she will permit him to call on her. A girl may have a man friend whom she especially likes and whom she knows would like to come and see her. In an informal way it is all right for her to ask him to the house. Doing it any other way is as if one was urging admirers to come forward.

"J. K." writes:

"I work 14 hours a day and am tired out when I take the car for home. Recently I gave up my seat to a lady, only to hear her remark to her companion as she sank into it, 'See! He fell easy!' What have you to say to that?"

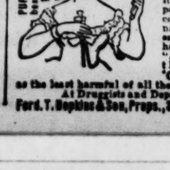

You were a gentleman and the lady a vulgarian.

"P. K." writes:

"Is it good form to ask a young man to send back my photograph after we have ceased writing? Should I return to him a few inexpensive gifts? I am sure we shall not be friends again."

Certainly you have a right to ask for the return of your photograph, and you may send back the gifts if you wish.

It Will Be Beautiful, Simple and Durable

The "Scoop" of 1860, "Fried Egg" of 1870, "Wind Catchers," "Picture Hats" and the "Peanut" Are to Be Succeeded by the "Polymuriel," Suitable for All Occasions.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

IN response to the tremendous interest aroused nationally among women by Mrs. Mildred Johnston Landone's offer of a prize of $150 for the design of a Polymuriel, a universal gown for women characterized by beauty, simplicity, durability and comfort, a prize of $50 also is now being offered for the best design of a universal hat for women.

The rules governing the contest for the Polymuriel hat are the same as those arranged for the Polymuriel gown competition.

All sketches must be signed in the upper right hand corner with an assumed name of the designer, and accompanied by a sealed envelope, bearing the assumed name on the outside and containing a slip inscribed with the real name and address.

The sketches and all communications concerning them are to be addressed to the "Polymuriel Prize Fund Committee," 528 Riverside Drive, New York City. The contest closes at midnight May 31. A check for $50 will be sent to the successful designer on June 15.

It takes half a century of hats—I had almost written half a century of horrors—to bring out clearly and conclusively woman's need of a head-covering that is at once beautiful, simple, durable and comfortable. Feminine hats of the last fifty years have been inartistic, complicated, fragile and unwieldly by turns; sometimes several or all of these things at once. "Expensive" and "unhealthful" are other entirely applicable adjectives. The Polymuriel hat is as much of a necessity as the Polymuriel gown.

It's an uncommonly pretty face that can maintain its attractiveness in the depths of the scoop or coal scuttle sunbonnet. Yet that is the thing all the women had to wear all the year 'round back in 1860. In quaint Godey's Magazine, for the year before the Civil War, we find maid and matron wearing cavernous bonnets of straw, of silk, of velvet, of quilted ribbon. "The latest styles project very far from the face," we read, "though not in a point, and stand very high from the head." In the illustration is shown an elaborate affair of green silk lined with lace and tied with long floating ribbons; also an edifice of quilted blue satin. A straw bonnet has a two-inch lace rim hanging down all the way 'round in a lampshade effect. Such headgear must have been intolerably warm and uncomfortable, during summer at least, and could have suited only a certain flawlessly oval countenance.

Ten years later, in 1870, the back-drop of the bonnet had disappeared, and women were wearing a small, shell-shaped affair, practically brimless and barely covering the crown of the head. In some fashion plates this hat is scarcely bigger than a doll's hat, and we marvel how it ever stayed on.

Two or three stiff little feathers are stuck on one side of it or perhaps an ostrich plume curls ticklingly over one ear. Some models recall the general outline of a fried egg; others more nearly resemble an oyster.

The trouble with this hat, from the viewpoint of common sense, is the trouble with the peanut-shaped Glengarry hat which is so popular at present. Neither one of them fulfills the first duty of headgear. Neither one shades the eyes from the sun. To obtain just that special sort of protection is undoubtedly the reason why the savage donned his first chapeau of plaited grass.

With the passing of another decade we find the hats broader, higher, more elaborately trimmed, yet giving scarcely more protection against strong sunlight. In 1880 a lack of simplicity and an increase in costliness characterized my lady's millinery. Big bunches of big flowers, such as roses and poppies, were favorite trimmings, together with fancy jewelled buckles.

A plush bonnet with a double ruching around the face and big bows under the chin, was trimmed on one side with a huge bunch of ostrich plumes suggesting the genesis of the willow plume. Here is the description of another creation: "The brim of this hat is raised in front and back and lined with closely shirred red velvet, while a pleated scarf of cream-colored silk gauze is folded about it and an aigrette of marabout and heron feathers stands high in front." Enter the trouble-maker for the customs house!

The hats of 1890 are obviously wind-catchers, with their fantastic projections in front. These are to be seen even on travelling hats. Some are like flour-scoops; others resemble a fireman's hat turned hindside-fore. The bonnet is on its last feather, so to speak; only a few isolated models are to be found in the fashion magazines of that year. The hats are all out of balance with the face.

This is one of the simple little things they were wearing 25 years ago. "The large felt capline is one of the favorites this season. Its gray felt brim is faced in black velvet cut to fit it and edged with steel cord. A torsade of gray satin ribbon some black velvet and pannches of black feathers are the trimmings. There is a bow of gray satin at the back."

Enter—or re-enter—the Gainsborough in 1900, curved up on one side with trimming of heavy plumes. The sky-scraper hats were popular this year, scaring straight up six inches or more over the six-inch pompadours then in vogue. The mode suited short women well enough, but it made the tall ones look like Cardiff giants.

And five years ago, as perhaps you will recall, we were giving ourselves headaches and wrinkles and making our hair come out with round, high, heavy toques and wide picture hats that weighed pounds and pounds.

And the evolution of the hat has given us the peanut of today.

What should a Polymuriel hat be? That question can be answered affirmatively only when the Polymuriel Prize Fund Committee has awarded the prize.

But a half century of hats has developed several things a universal hat for women should not be. It should not be so heavy that it overheats the head and causes headaches; its brim should not be so narrow that it affords no protection from the sun, not so wide that it forms a wind trap.

Such a hat should have trimming that is neither easily perishable nor prohibitively expensive. The shape should be becoming to round, oval and square faces and no murderous hatpins should be necessary—preferably, no hatpins at all.

Horrors of Half a Century in Hat Fashions for Women

1860—The scoop.
1870—The doll's hat, the oyster and the fried egg.
1880—The feathered hat that lost simplicity and gained in expensiveness.
1900—Gainsborough redivivus and the skyscraper.
1915—The peanut.

HAD SAME COUGH FOR SEVERAL YEARS

Woman Fifty Years Old—Coughed More or Less Since Childhood—Found No Relief Until She Got Vinol.

"I want everybody to know what Vinol has done for me. I am now fifty years old and ever since I was a young girl I have had a cough most of the time, and sick headaches which left me weak and with no desire for food.

"I took all kinds of medicines but nothing seemed to do me any good. Finally my druggist asked me to try Vinol, saying that if it did not help me he would refund my money. I felt so much better after taking one bottle I bought more. Now my cough is entirely cured. I have a good appetite and feel better than I ever did in my life, and I cannot recommend Vinol too highly."—Mrs. J. C. Schneider, Dayton, Ohio.

Vinol is not a secret nostrum, simply a combination of the medicinal elements found in cod livers, together with tonic iron, contains no oil and is delicious tasting. We ask every man or woman in this vicinity suffering from chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, and every weak, run-down person to try Vinol.

WOMEN OF RUSSIA

As the war continues the women on the border suffer the horrors of war and the mothers and orphans left at home are the ones who suffer most. In America are many mothers and daughters, who were left penniless by the war of the Rebellion, but their sufferings are as nothing to the women and children left as widows and orphans of the soldiers who have fought and bled for their country in Europe.

Many a mother and daughter have reason to be thankful to Dr. Pierce for relief from suffering and the cure of those ailments of their sex, because of his "Favorite Prescription." This tonic, which is strictly a temperance medicine, has cured thousands of those ailments, headaches, nervousness, backaches, which are the outward manifestations of disease in women. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions, removes pain and misery, and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotics to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

What Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for thousands it will do for you. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Get it this very day at any medicine dealers in either liquid or tablet form.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.—Adv.

Can You Figure It Out?

IT is obvious that we owe more to those who are congenial than we do to those who are uncongenial to us. It is equally certain that if we have a truly generous and noble spirit we will acknowledge that the fault for unconveniality rests within ourselves rather than in the person who is uncongenial. It is likewise certain that true generosity and nobility would remold the characteristics which cause this uncongeniality. However, it is self-evident that the remolding of these characteristics would tend to offend those who are ordinarily congenial, and as these are the ones to whom we owe the most, the proper line of conduct is not clear.—

Instinctive Enmity.

WARFARE and enmity are not confined to human beings. Among animals battles are continually raging, the results of instinctive or racial differences. Moles, clumsy and almost blind, become perfect demons when they quarrel. No one knows what they quarrel about, but when once they start fighting one has to die. They will keep on in the presence of any number of spectators, hanging on to each other like bulldogs and burying their enormously strong teeth in one another's flesh with the utmost fury. Hedgehogs, another type of the quiet, inoffensive-looking animal, not only fight, but always to the death, and when one is killed the other generally devours him. Hares, on the other hand, are proverbially the most timid of creatures, yet a fight between two hares is a ludicrous sight, as they skip and jump over each other. But a blow from the hind legs of a hare is no joke to his opponent.

Favorite Tipples.

THERE are many other ales besides the Scots ale brewed from heather, whose receipts are secrets of the past. No one knows, for instance, how the nut brown ale of the middle ages was brewed, or the famous "Dagger" ale, which was to be obtained at only one inn in London, the Dagger, in Holborn, an Elizabethan resort of lawyers and their clerks. Then there was the popular but mysterious "three threads," with wnich London citizens slaked their thirst centuries ago.

All have long since vanished, but as a compensation there are still numerous favorite ales—not the largely advertised beverages which everyone knows, but the special tipple of various famous hostelries which are known only to certain explorers of London.—London Chronicle.

What Makes the Morning Glory Sleep

Sandman story of the flower that gets up so early to see the sun first she has to nod the remainder of the day.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

ONE day the flowers got into a very angry discussion over the sun, of whom they were very fond.

"Surely, you all must know that he loves me best," said the rose. "He shines upon me and makes me sweeter than any of you, and he gives me the colors that are most admired by man."

"I do not see how you can say that," said Dahlia. "You may give forth more fragrance than I can, but you cannot think for a second that you are more beautiful. Why, my colors are richer than yours and last much longer. The sun certainly loves me the best."

The modest lily looked at the dahlia and said in a low, sweet voice: "I do not wish to be bold, but I feel that the sun loves me and that I should let you know that he gives to me more fragrance than to any of you."

"Oh, oh! Hear lily," said the others in chorus. "She thinks the king of the day loves her best."

The lily hung her head and said no more, for the other flowers quite frightened her with their taunts.

"How can any of you think you are the best beloved of the sun?" said golden glow. "When you behold my glowing color, which the sun bestows on me, do any of you look so much like him as I do? No, indeed; he loves me best."

The hollyhock looked down on the others with pitying glances. "It is plain to be seen that you have never noticed that the sun shines on me with more warmth than on you, and now I must tell you he loves me best and gives me the tenderest of his smiles. See how tall I am and how gorgeous are my colors. He loves me best."

WHEN it comes to sweetness I am sure you have forgotten me," said the honeysuckle. "Why, the king of day loves me best, you may be sure. He makes me give forth more sweetness than any of you."

"You may be very sweet," said the pansy, "but surely you know that my pet name is heart's ease and that the sun loves me best. Look at my beautiful soft, rich colors. To none of you does he give such velvet beauty as to me. I am nearest his heart and his best beloved."

The morning glory listened to all this with envy in her heart. She did not give forth sweetness as many of the others, neither did she possess the beauty of the rose or the pansy.

"If only I could get him to notice me," she thought. "I am dainty and frail and I am sure he would admire me if only he could behold me, but the others are always here and in such glowing colors that poor little I am overshadowed by their beauty."

All day morning glory thought of the sun and wondered how she could attract his attention to herself, and at night she smiled, for she had thought of a plan. She would get up early in the morning and greet him before the other flowers were awake.

She went to bed early that night so that she might not oversleep in the morning, and when the first streak of dawn showed in the sky morning glory opened her eyes and shook out her delicate folds. The dew was on her and she turned her face toward the sun

As soon as she peeped into the garden the sun beheld her. "How dainty and lovely you are," he said. "I have never noticed before the beauty of your colors, morning glory," and he let his warm glances fall and linger upon her.

The sunflower all this time was watching with jealous eyes, for she was the one who had always welcomed the sun, and this morning he seemed to have entirely forgotten her.

Still sunflower kept her gaze upon them and wondered what she could do to win back her king from the delicate little morning glory.

BUT as she looked she saw the morning glory away and nod her head. "She is going to sleep," said the sunflower; "his warm breath makes her drowsy, or else she was up so early that she cannot keep awake."

While the sunflower watched, sure enough the morning glory nodded and closed her eyes. She was fast asleep, and the fickle sun, seeing that she no longer looked upon him, looked away and beheld the sunflower looking toward him with longing eyes.

"Good morning, king," she said, as she caught his eye, and she was wise enough not to let him know she had seen him before. So the sun smiled and turned his face upon her until the other flowers were awake. Then he smiled upon them all and the sunflower kept to herself what she had seen knowing full well that she was the one who knew best how to keep his first and last glances.

A little later one of the flowers called out: "Look at morning glory; she is still sleeping; let us tell her it is time to awake."

"Morning glory, morning glory," they called, but she did not answer. She was sound asleep.

"That is strange," said the rose. "I wonder if she has gone to sleep never to wake, I have heard os such things happening."

After two or three mornings the other flowers ceased to notice morning glory, for they thought she had ceased to be one of them, but the wise sunflower kept her own counsel. She knew that morning glory had to sleep all day in order that she might not miss the sun; but,, as I told you, she was wise enough not to complain, and she kept his love for her by so doing.

Analysis of a Pretty Girl

A PRETTY girl is a combination of curves, hair, skin and color. She possesses these attributes in common with homely girls, but in such particular proportions that, in her case the result is quite different.

A pretty girl is an exception to the rule, because if the majority of girls were pretty, they would be so common that we should get used to them.

It is even conceivable that if pretty girls were in the majority, then we might come to believe that under these circumstances the girls who are now ordinary would then be considered pretty.

Every pretty girl has many things in common with homely girls. She walks upright on two legs, her head is placed in the usual manner on her shoulders and her arms hang idly on each side. She also has eyes, cheeks, lips and ears. In the case of the pretty girl, however these necessary appurtenance are generally referred to as orbs, peach blossoms, Cupid's bows and pink seashells.

eYt each one of them, in its shape coloring and cubic density may be precisely similar to the one owned by a homely girl, whose possession are, however, never referred to in this imaginative manner, unless by some deluded individual who has looked at them so long that he is willing to believe anything about them is true.—Life.

Persian carpets were formerly dyed with indigo madder or vine leaves, and from these materials shades were evolved that were impervious to the action of sunlight. Analine dyes, which have been much used in recent years give colors which fade much more rapidly.

BALL, BACK FROM 'PEACE MEET', SAYS NONE TOOK PLACE

Real Purpose of Chicago Conference Was to Obtain Relief, Pending Decision of Judge Landis.

THAT Chicago baseball conference yesterday had nothing to do with "peace," if deductions made from the statements of Philip Ball, owner of the St. Louis Federals, Robert L. Hedges, president of the Browns, and Montagu Lyon, attorney for the St. Louis Feds can be relied on.

On the other hand, it is reasonably certain that the conference was held with the sole purpose of obtaining relief from the tangle caused by the Federal League injunction case, now awaiting a decision by Judge Landis.

The fact that the local Federal club owner and the league president held a secret meeting at the Chicago Athletic Association, attended by other Fed magnates, and in which President Ban Johnson, Hedges and George Williams, Hedges' attorney, were especially interested, is admitted; but that it concerned an entirely different subject than peace is hinted by all the St. Louisans who returned this morning.

Mr. Ball was the first member of the party to answer a phone call. He was asked concerning the "peace" meeting.

"If anything transpired at Chicago that concerned peace, I didn't hear of it," was his reply.

"How was it that you and your attorney and Hedges and his attorney happened to be in conference at Chicago?"

"We were at the ball game together, but that ends our conference. I took Mr. Lyon to Chicago on the Marsans case. In the Landis trial Mr. Hedges included the Marsans case. This fact, and the delayed decision, is acting against us, at this time, since we are deprived of the services of Marsans. We went to Chicago to see if some arrangement could not be made whereby Marsans could be used pending the handing down of the decision. That's the fact."

"Then there is nothing to this 'peace' talk?"

"Absolutely nothing. You can make that as strong as you like."

Not After the Browns.

"Rumor had it that deal was on whereby you would become the owner of the St. Louis Browns or the Cards. Is there anything to it?"

"There is absolutely nothing to it but rot. I have not had any discussion or deal regarding this subject. The Marsans case was the only business that took me to Chicago, if you except some private affairs."

"Do you know anything of any peace plans in prospect?"

"If I hear of anything of this sort, I shall give it out as soon as it becomes my right to do so. I know of no arrangements now."

Mr. Hedges was next called to the phone. In substance Hedges said:

"In my opinion there will be no peace settled until one of the warring leagues 'blows.' I think well enough of all of them, including the enemy, to believe that this is some distance away. There were no peace plans discussed at the Chicago meeting."

"Was the purpose of the conference in Chicago to discuss ways and means of getting action on the baseball cases involved in the Landis suit?"

"I can't reply to that. I will say, however, that I have no doubt the Federal League would like to see the tangle settled. We did not bring that suit, and the Federals will have to take the consequences, it appears."

No Deal for Browns.

"Was any offer made you for the Browns or did you solicit one?"

"Absolutely none, you may rely on that. And I would like to say that one of the most foolish things printed was the story that Ban Johnson, myself or any other American Leaguer had any conversation with Mr. Ball that in any way concerned the St. Louis National League club. It's not our property to dispose of or to discuss in any way. More than this I am not at liberty to say anything."

Montagu Lyon, attorney for the Federals, was asked about the Chicago affair, and, from the reporter's point of view he was a total loss. The only fact rescued came by way of a smile in response to the question:

"Has the settlement of the Landis case anything to do with the Chicago meeting?"

Following the smile came the remark:

"You're getting warm, now."

Mr. Lyons earlier in the day, over the telephone had stated that there would be no conference in Chicago today, as all parties to the meeting of yesterday had departed for their homes.

Chicago Believes Feds Agreed on Peace Terms, Despite Many Denials

CHICAGO, April 24.—In a supposed peace conference at the Chicago Athletic Association, yesterday, Federal League magnates put the finishing touches to the peace negotiations between themselves and organized baseball, so far as it affects the independent circuit. It is now up to O. B. to say whether or not it shall be peace or war and whether Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Feds, shall also become the possessor of the St. Louis National League franchise.

It was a spasmodic session with many interruptions, due to frequent consultations with President Johnson of the American League and others.

It is unnecessary to say that the conference was veiled in secrecy with the gumshoe brigade working overtime. Elaborate efforts were made to throw newspaper sleuths off the scent and questions hurled at the parties interested made it a certainty that Baron Munchausen had a front seat.

The conference which broke up late last night was attended by President James A. Gilmore of the Federal League, Robert B. Ward, President of the Brookfeds, William F. Robertson, president of the Buffalo Federal club, Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Feds and his attorney, Montague Lyon, also of St. Louis.

Within call were President Johnson of the American League, Judge George H. Williams, American League attorney, of St. Louis; President Charles H. Weegham of the Whales and Col. Robert L. Hedges of the St. Louis Browns.

Mr. Ward and Mr. Robertson, who, with President Gilmone, make up the executive committee of the Federal League, arrived during the day and immediately went to the club.

Questions as to their presence in the city were met with denials from everybody concerned. That the Federal side of the negotiations were completed was made evident when Mr. Ball and Mr. Lyon left for St. Louis at midnight.

Another conference was scheduled for today, but this should be slimly attended unless President Tener of the National League and Garry Herrmann of Cincinnati should put in an appearance. It was hide-and-seek with the magnates all day and bland denials from everybody of everything connected with baseball.

Negro Scrapper Stops Opponent in Half Minute

Mexican Kid Floors Kid Moore of New York Twice in Twenty-Five Seconds.

One of the quickest endings on record to a local fight came last night at the Future City Athletic Club when the shifty colored scrapper Mexican Kid, knocked out Kid Moore, of New York, in less than half a minute. As the bout started the men sparred for two or three seconds in the ring center and Mexico landed on Moore's jaw for a knockdown. Moore took the count and, on rising, he was almost immediately floored down again. This time he stayed for the count. It all happened in 20 seconds.

Bighead Ratty and Earl Murphy fought an eight-round draw, while Ben Hall beat Battling Smith in the third round. All the fighters in these bouts were negroes.

A. A. Tank Team to Meet C. A. C. Paddlers in Dual Meet Tonight

That long-wanted and many-time advertised swimming meet is at last to be held. After scheduling and postponing aquatic struggles for the past six months, the local horde of paddlers will finally get into action when the Missouri A. A. and the Columbian A. C. clash in Lorelei natatorium tonight.

The occasion of the meet is the return of Thomas Whittaker, mentor of the cherry diamond neophites. Swimming was dormant until Whittaker returned last week. He immediately set to work and scheduled the meet.

The M. A. A. and C. A. C. have quite a monopoly on the swimming talent of the town and consequently tonight's performances are sure to bring forth some clever efforts.

The cherry diamond squad will consist of Heath, Laubis, Stuerman and Toole in the sprints; Kretzer in the diving, Doessling in the breast stroke and Freund in the plunge. This squad, reinforced by Bolland, Brigham and Siegel, will be seen in the water polo lineup.

Coach Grimes of the South Side team will depend upon Johnson, Kroeger, McBride, Munro, Mills, Craden, Hoffman, Brightfield, Zimmerman and Hummell. The meet will start at 8 p. m.

PITCHERS NOT YET GOING WELL, WEAK HITTERS FLOURISH

All Three Leagues Show Surprising Number of .300 Sluggers So Far This Year.

COBB'S EYE STILL THERE

Brookfeds Have Five Men Batting Higher Than .390, Lee Magee Among Them.

The first crop of baseball averages are released this morning. Official American League Statistician Irwin Howe set them in motion, although the statistics are "unofficial."

The surprising number of .300 hitters shows that the hurling in all leagues is far from up to mid-season standard. Sixteen men are batting above the .300 limit in the American, and 26 each in the National and Federal Leagues.

The Brookfeds have no less than five players who are batting over .390 up to last Wednesday's games.

Only a few of the more important figures are given here, as they mean little or nothing at this time of year and are interesting solely on account of grotesque absurdity of some of the reversals.

Catcher Glenn, who worked behind the bat with Frank Snyder on the injured list, is the leading batter for the Cardinals with a mark of .333. Jack Miller is next in line with .320. Bob Bescher with .308 is the only other Cardinal in the select circle. After Bescher, Manager Huggins, noses in his way with .250. The Cardinals are the weakest hitting team in the National League with .204. They are fifth in fielding with .967.

It must peeve Johnny McGraw to look at the early season batting averages. Bob Bescher, fired by McGraw, hitting .308. George Burns the best for the Giants, has .222. Snodgrass is swatting .167, while Murray owns a .077 mark. Robertson and Thorpe have failed to make a hit. Bescher has made eight bingles, while the five Giant meadowmen combined have cracked out 11.

Sherwood Magee, who was traded to the Braves by the Phillies, has not hit his batting stride. Magee has a notch of .280, while George Whitted, the ex-Cardinal, who was turned over to Moran by Stallings has a .333 figure.

Charley Herzog's Reds are first in batting, second in base stealing and first in fielding. The Cincinnati crew is batting .274, while the Phillies, leaders in the National League, have .266. Roger Bresnahan's Cubs have swiped 15 sacks and the Reds 14. In fielding the figure for Herzog's crew is .980. The Phillies again trail with .979.

No wonder the Tigers are leading in the A. L. Cobb, Crawford and Veach all hitting over the .400 mark. This trio has scored 22 runs this year, with Cobb high with 13, while the Browns have managed to cross the plate 23 times. The tigers are leading in team batting with .285. They rank sixth in fielding with .950. Cleveland is the best fielding aggregation with .974. The Browns are hitting .224 and fielding .937.

Eddie Collins has a slight edge on his successor, Lajoie, with the Athletics. Collins is clouting .250 and Lajoie .222. Bobby Wallace also is swatting .250. Hans Wagner has it on his two veteran rivals with an average of .278.

At present Ty Cobb has a big edge on his batting rival, Joe Jackson. The Tiger demon is 123 points ahead of the Indian outfielder. Tris Speaker, another Southern gentleman, who battles with Cobb and Jackson each year, is way down the line with .174. Speaker is away off form.

Fritz Maisel had one great day on the bags, last Saturday when he pinched four bases. In the other battles he has pilfered only one. John Collins of the White Sox is tied with Maisel for the lead. The Athletics have the slowest team in the league, having swiped only three sacks this year.

Youngsters in the A. L. are having little success clouting .300. Kauffman is the only one with .321. Severoid owns a .286 mark. Pipp of the Yankees has .250, while Young of the Tigers has the same figure. Brief of the White Sox owns a .241 mark, while Happy Felsch is stranded at .174.

Lee Magee, the former Cardinal, is leading the champion base-stealing team in the Fed circuit. Magee's cohorts have swiped 28 bases this year. Buffalo is second, with 16. Just half of the number for the Brookfeds go to Magee and Kauf. Each has pilfered seven sacks this year. That's the total for the Terriers. Magee's men also have counted the greatest number of tallies—72.

Chinese Nine to Play Concordia at Brock Field

Something new in the baseball line besides "war" will be shown to the fans this afternoon at Brock's Field when the Chinese team from the Honolulu University opposes the Concordia Seminary team. It is evident from recent scores of the Chinese nine that Concordia will have no easy sailing against the visitors, who have been playing some good games against some of the best college nines in the country.

Thursday the Celestials beat Missouri University at Columbia, 3—0, while Friday they easily trimmed Westminster College at Fulton, Mo., 14—1. These nines are considered among the best college teams in the State.

Manager Bill Bode of the Concordia nine has had his men out every day the past week preparing for the Chinese nine. The South Side school team is much weaker than in former years, as the club has been deprived of several star players during the off-season by graduation and faculty rulings. Schluter and Meinhold will do the battery work for Concordia, while the Chinese team has not announced its battery as yet. Play at 3 p. m. The Chinese team arrived from Fulton, Mo., at noon.

McKinley Beats Soldan High, 9-8

McKinley High School's baseball nine defeated the Soldan High team, 9 to 8, at Pastime Park, this morning. Wallace pitched for the winners, while Brockmeyer was on the mound for Soldan. The defeated team made a three-run rally in the ninth, but failed to tie by one tally.

World's Champion Scrub Is Illini's Guest Tonight

Coach Zuppke, Who Never "Made" His Varsity Eleven, but Who Is Now Considered the Ablest Football Leader of the West, Will Talk of Illinois' Prospects Here.

WE have with us today, the world's champion "scrub," Robert Zuppke of Champaign, Ill. and Chicago. Lest some readers take this to heart, as hurling an unkind epithet at Mr. Zuppke, it may be explained that the dictionary definition of the word "scrub" is all wrong, from a football viewpoint. The Standard Dictionary defines the term as follows:

SCRUB—A small, mean, inferior, worthless being.

That's the stock Zuppke comes of. It's the spirit responsible for the fact that today he's esteemed the greatest coach in the West, although he himself never was able to play well enough to make his alma mater varsity team.

Was Four Years a Scrub.

ZUPPKE played with the Oak Park High School and then one year with a normal school eleven, after which he played four years with the Wisconsin scrubs.

Think of it, boys! Four years of battering, suffered while trying to show up a play at the expense of men better than yourself, and all for the glory of the other fellow.

But say, Bo. It's SOME handshake.

Zuppke graduated in that kind of a course and it made him a student, a philosopher and a title-winning coach. Doesn't that make him a world's champion scrub?

Zuppke's business in St. Louis is to attend the annual dinner and reunion of the Illinois University

ROBERT ZUPPKE.

Alumni, at the Hotel Jefferson, tonight. What he has to tell about football and the prospects of another championship team at Champaign, next fall, ought to be interesting.

Zuppke's first experience as a coach came as leader of the Oak Park High School eleven, where he remained for three years. His team defeated the Everett High of Boston for the U. S. interscholastic championship, in 1912. It was his record made with this team that led to his selection as head of the Illinois eleven.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The New Quick-Rich El Dorado. 1

CONSUMERS of the midnight kilowatt hour, octopus rate, in search of a quick-rich scheme, can switch off the current and rest easy. A new system for getting it easy has been found and is being put across the pan in almost every city of the country.

For returns on the amount invested it has any of these piking bucket-shop or E. J. Arnold systems looking like a short sport's graft.

For a printer's bill of $5 or less any industrious mingler, with a persuasive voice, can make $433.50 a week, or $13,000 during the season, if he's not caught at it. Here's the scheme that both the producer and the consumer are eating up—it's no novelty at that:

Opposite each name have squares arranged, in which are to be kept the number of runs scored by each club, each day in the week.

Offer four prizes as follows: $25, $15, $10, $5, for first, second, third and fourth; offer $2.50 per day for the high daily total score, risking in all $72.50.

Old Man Dope to the Rescue.

WE had to dig up Old Man Dope to find out about this soft thing. Some smart gazabo, with his eyes open, asked Dope how many combinations of three could be made out of 24 objects—which put the old scout on the arithmetic hummer until he was salvaged by a friendly professor, who slipped him the formula for computing combinations.

With this Dope found that 2024 combinations of three are possible with 24 objects. Thus, the get-it-quick boys get just that many quarters from the sale of the combination cards.

Sometimes they offer greater prizes; but the grand total isn't more than $219 a week in the most liberal emporium in the city.

• • •

Making It Still Safer.

SOMETIMES all the combinations can't be disposed of; but just as likely as not those tickets retained by the dealer may contain some of the more important prizes, saving him that expenditure.

There is NO WAY TO LOSE, boys—if you're on the SELLING end of the deal.

Pretty Soft For R. N. Williams.

R. NORRIS WILLIAMS, whose victory over Maurice McLoughlin in the national tennis championships last fall, stirred up so much discussion over the ranking of the country's players, is not on speaking terms with a Jinx.

That fact was made plain when Maurice McLoughlin sent East the information that he did not expect to be able to go East for the national lawn tennis title play this year. That R. Lindley Murray, the young California sensation of last season, is suffering from a broken foot arch and will also probably be out of the event is another evidence of Williams' rabbit foot.

McLoughlin is a better player than Williams, while Lindley is a rising sensation. To say the least, he is a dangerous one. Aside from these two prospects, there was not a player in the country with a reasonable chance of taking the national title away from Williams. Church did beat Williams, but it was just one of those form upsets by which Williams himself defeated McLoughlin.

As a result of the situation, Williams will probably hold down the National Tennis throne for another season, without much effort.

• • •

Johnson Not Through Fighting.

JACK JOHNSON is easing his way to England through Spain, according to reports from Cuba. Johnson is supposed to have an engagement in England to meet any scrapper Manager Bettinson of the National Sporting Club sees fit to name as an opponent.

This proposition, if it exists, was probably made in the belief that Johnson would defeat Willard and that he would be a great card in England.

• • •

As it is, Johnson is probably better for a 20-round fight than any boxer in the country. Now that Willard knows Johnson's weaknesses and has tested out his defensive strength, he might be able to tear in and stop the big black under that limit.

Old Man Dope, however, figures that Johnson, fighting purely on the defense, would be a stiff proposition for any fighter to put out, Willard included, inside the twenty round limit.

• • •

No doubt Johnson can pick up a little jitney stuff here and there; but that $30,000 graft and perpetual chicken am gone, Misto' Johnson.

• • •

The other title Johnson boasts, that of biscuit making champion, he can retain as long as he can make the dough, eh Bo?

• • •

What Happened to Mack.

HAVE the Athletics been hurt by the withdrawal of Plank, Bender, Baker, Coombs and Bender from last year's club? We sent Old Man Dope and his slow-but-sure tortoise shell specs after this problem. He emerged with a lot of facts and left a lot more behind. He found that in their first seven games the Athletics:

Dope's findings, in the absence of better information, will have to serve as an answer. They certainly make the Mack machine look like a joke without a laugh in it.

• • •

Scratching beneath the surface of that game reveals that besides the hits made by the opposition, the Philadelphia pitchers passed ten men, while four Bostonians reached first on errors!

DAVENPORT SEEMS BEST PITCHER OF TERRIERS' STAFF

Only Nine Hits Have Been Made Off Him in the Last Seventeen Innings.

FORMER CARDS SHINE

Koney, Oakes and Company Star as Pittsfeds Defeat Fielder Jones' Men.

Although he was charged with yesterday's defeat at the hands of the Pittsfeds, Dave Davenport looks like the one best bet among Fielder Jones' flingers at the present time. Davenport has twirled great ball for the Terriers in his last two outs. Nine blows have been made off him in the last 17 rounds he has labored. While the Terriers lost yesterday, 5—2, only two of the counts came off the lanky right-hander.

Last Sunday Davenport made his first start in an at-home game. He opposed the Whales and set Joe Tinker's crew down with three hits—two of them coming in the first round and one in the second. After that not a blow was made off him.

Yesterday Dave started off on the wrong foot. Two bingles spelled two runs in the first round and brought a defeat for the 6-foot-6 right-hander. One blow came off him in the second, while he was found for another in the third. After that he set the charges of Rebel Oakes down in one-two-three order until the eighth when two more bingles came off his delivery.

Former Cards Star.

Two ex-Cardinals, Ed Koney and Rebel Oakes, played an important part in the defeat for Davenport. With Berghammer on second through a pass and stolen base, Koney clouted a double to right, scoring the ex-Red with the first tally. Then Boss Oakes punched a single to left, scoring the "Big Train."

Davenport also owned control in the clash yesterday. He passed only three batters—two of them in the first and one in the seventh. His best pitching of the afternoon came in the eighth round, when Rogge and Jones, the first two men up, hit safely. Berghammer, trying to sacrifice, was out on a bunted third strike. Davenport kept the ball low for the shortstop. Mowrey popped to Borton and Koney raised a fly to Miller, pulling Dave out of what looked like a bad hole.

Oakes' men put the game on ice in the ninth round with Crandall pitching. After Oakes had been retired Lewis and Kelly singled. Berry was safe and the bases full, when Johnson threw late to second trying for a force play. Rogge came through with a single, scoring two. Jones also bingled, counting Berry. Two great throws by Hartley, nipping Jones off second and Berghammer stealing, averted further trouble.

Feds Score Early.

Jones' aggregation started with one in the first. Tobin walked, advanced on an infield out and scored when Kelley muffed Drake's fly. The final count came in the ninth frame on Borton's triple and Miller's single. With two on and one gone, Deal and Bridwell failed to produce.

The fans yelled "Strike him out" when Koney stepped to the plate in the first round. But Koney crossed 'em, punching a double to right. In the sixth Davenport whiffed the former Card first sicker and the small gathering gave him a cheer.

Rebel Oakes had a busy day in center field. Eight putouts. One of them was a circus catch, depriving Crandall of a sure double in the eighth. Oakes knocked the ball up in the air with his gloved hand and grabbed it before it hit the ground.

The second game of the series will be played this afternoon. Crandall or Watson will pitch for the Terriers. Oakes probably will select Bunny Hearne, who was a member of the Cardinals some years ago.

SPORT SALAD BY L.C.DAVIS

The Passing Show.

HOPE springs eternal in the breast
We win a game and then get out
Our trusty horn and toot 'er.
'Twas ever thus from childhood's hour;
Our fondest hopes go blooie!
We win one straight;
Then, sad to state,
They pickle old St. Louie.

THE things that happened to our Browns
The White Sox laid our heroes out
Upon the field of glory.
'Twas in the seventh inning when
They bunched their hits on Grover;
The final score
Was three to four,
When everything was over.

ALAS! the worst is yet to come;
We find our sorrow trebles;
The Terriers, too, went down before
Those pesky Pittsburg "Rebels."
The way they treated Fielder Jones
They had great sport
With Davenport
And good old Doctor Crandall.

THE eyes of all the baseball world
Are centered on the Quakers;
They're going like a house afire
And look like record-breakers.
Sir Pat Moran has put the ban
On bickerings and quarrels;
We doff our hat
To good old Pat,

HUGH JENNINGS and his Tiger troupe
Are coming with a rattle;
The Tigers, for that grand old rag,
Are putting up a battle.
Along the road to Pennantville
Sir Freckle Face
Has set a pace
That keeps 'em all a-guessing.

Love at First Sight.

Ban Johnson, in the last few weeks, seems to have developed a remarkable fondness for the society of Phil Ball. Inasmuch as Johnson claims that the recent conferences between the two have been of a purely social character and had nothing whatever to do with negotiating for peace between the warring baseball factions, we gather that Ban must have fallen a victim to Phil's fatal beauty.

• • •

Col. Hedges' reported proposition to form two 10-club circuits is worthy of consideration. We have always felt that Cleveland finished a couple of notches higher than they were entitled to last year.

• • •

It is only by making such scurrilous remarks as the above that we can get even with the Indians for beating the Browns three out of four games on their last trip.

• • •

You Never Can Tell.

The wise acres who are confidently predicting that the Phillies will soon be coming back to the bunch with a bang will do well to bear in mind the Boston Braves of last year. Even after being looted and wrecked, the Phils look right now to be about as good a club as the Braves when they were walloping the Athletics four straight.

• • •

And then don't forget that the king of all jinxes, Sherwood Magee, has been transferred from the Phillies to the Braves.

• • •

In view of the fact that all of the magnates concerned emphatically deny that negotiations for peace are on, we look for an early settlement of the baseball war.

PRINCIPIA WINS AGAIN

The Principia Academy baseball team defeated the Kirkwood High School nine yesterday, 8—4, at Principia campus. Schaberg and Hargis were in the points for Principia, while Hageman, Tuckett and Crucsinger did the battery work for Kirkwood.

BATTING OF LONG AND BESCHER HELP CONSOLE HUGGINS

CARDS' PITCHING WEAK

By W. J. O'Connor.

Aside from Tommy Long, there wasn't much to yesterday's game at Robison Field, unless it was the Cubs, who won, 8—4. Hug, nursing a lame arm, sent Butler to second base and then relied upon Dick Niehaus to pitch his way to victory. Ricardo fell down, with the proverbial dull thud, getting all the worst of it in the first frame, when Good tripled and Fisher filched a home run under the gate in deep left field. Niehaus retired in six inning and Griner came on, and so did the Cubs, who picked up a run here and there until they had eight.

Viewed from any angle, though, it was Long's batting that stood out. Thomaso hit his stride in the third inning, when he pumped a single to left with the bases filled, scoring Snyder and Butler. He fanned the next time up, but injected another single into the box score in the seventh. His final contribution was a two-bagger in the ninth, a hit that put Bescher in a position to score the fourth run on Miller's sacrifice fly.

Bescher and Long Hitting.

Long is meeting the ball solidly and his hits have the ring of true major-league clouts. He was paced in his work yesterday by Mr. Bescher, who made off with three singles and a walk out of four times up, a healthy average for one day.

Indeed, Manager Huggins can rest easy if these men maintain the pace they have lately acquired. Just now Wilson and Miller are a little off their stride but they will right themselves soon and give the wabbly pitching a much needed prop. Zinn Beck has been doing his share with the stick while Daringer confines himself entirely to defensive play.

Poor pitching now is the bete noir of Hug's existence. Sallee and Perdue, who are aging, figure to start late, while Doak hasn't been quite himself. When Lumbago Bill is right he is just what he proved himself last season—the best little right-hander in the National League Alexander excepted. But Doak is slow as is Griner, who was knocked awry in three innings, yesterday. Robinson seems almost a total loss, while Meadows is absolutely as good as a freshman in the varsity classification of baseball could expect to be.

Cards Find Batting Eyes.

In the late Cincinnati series, which resulted in four successive defeats for the Cards, Hug's men couldn't hit a lick. They have overcome that weakness now and are beginning to show a little life on the sacks. All is needed at this is a good game from Doak and another from Griner. Then all hands will round to and the merry pennant chase will be on. At that the Cards aren't doing much worse than the Giants or Braves, both of whom are nestling in second division.

Niehaus was savagely handled from the start. Good hit the first ball in the opening epoch, while Fischer took only one. The result was a triple and a home run, which is calculated to unsteady the nerves of even a lion-hearted blond like Richard.

Niehaus lost control in the third after he had two hands down. Fisher singled and Schulte doubled. Zim's walk filled the bases. Then Saier paraded, forcing home Fisher, while Miller made a two-base error on Williams, and Schulte and Zim counted.

Two were out again in the fifth when the Cubs counted. Schulte walked and Zim singled, putting Wildfire on third. The double-steal went through when Butler bungled Snyder's throw. In the next inning Bresnahan showed the Cards how to block the double steal. Betzel, running for Roche, was on first and Daringer on third. Bresnahan whipped the ball through to Phelan and he laid it on Betzel, ending the round before Daringer got home.

The crowd was a fairly good one—about 3500, all intensely interested. It seems that the Cards have a more noisy following this year than the Browns, although the presence of Roger Bresnahan may have something to do with the amount of shouting the past two days. The fans and Roger rioted again yesterday, but the laugh was on the patrons this time.

For the third game with the Cubs today, Hug probably will send Perdue to the hurling hill. Zabel is Bresnahan's choice.

UMPIRE'S RULING DEFEATS BROWNS; RICKEY "BENCHED"

St. Louis Team's Leader Raises Loud Roar at Official's Ruling on a "Balk" Play.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 24.—The Browns yesterday raised the ancient howl that they were robbed of the second game with the White Sox by the umpire. Nallin, one of the new men on the American League staff, is the gent with whom they are finding fault. Usually those claims are but the alibis of the losers; but in this case the Browns seem to have the better of it.

And the umpire looks bad, whether he was right or wrong. The play came up in the seventh, when the St. Louis lads were in the midst of a rally. The score was 4 to 3 against them, C. Walker was on third, Austin on second and Wolfgang was pitching for the Sox. The latter started a pitch, dropped the ball and Rickey immediately set up the claim of balk.

Technically, it looked as if he had all the better of it. He protested to Nallin, who was calling balls and strikes, and the latter, instead of giving a firm and final decision, wavered and then consulted Bill Dinneen, who was working on the bases. After a consultation, Nallin, who should have known whether it was a balk or not, decided that Wolfgang had not balked. The chance of the Browns was gone and the final was 4 to 3 against them.

Branch Rickey kicked so strongly that he was chased, and it was the first time this year that he was told to get out of the game. The fans were quite certain that he was right and gave him a great hand as he marched toward the Brown coop.

James Due Today.

Big Bill James was named early today to step on the slab and stop the losing streak of the Browns. Reb Russell, the Sox's southpaw, was the first choice of Manager Rowland.

Russell has displayed a tendency to blow in the final stages this season. In his two starts he has been a whale during the early part of the combat, but has weakened and permitted the enemy to bat out a victory.

This Big Lowdermilk found two men on the Sox team he could not pitch to in yesterday's game—Eddie Collins, former star of the Mackmen, and Jack Fournier, the Frenchman. These two practically won the game for Chicago. In the first, Collins walked and scored on Fournier's triple. No more runs were made until the seventh, when Collins again walked and Fournier tripled. This time the Frenchman also scored. Collins drew three passes in the game, and could Lowdermilk have disposed of him as he did of the others it would have been a St. Louis victory; but Eddie and his reputation seemed to have the elongated speed ball artist on the run.

NEW ALL-ROUND CHAMPION FOUND AT PENN RELAYS

Harold Berry 19 Years Old, Won the Pentathlon From Strong Competition, Yesterday.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—A youngster representing the University of Pennsylvania, named Harold Berry, proved himself the best collegiate athlete in America, yesterday afternoon, when he won the pentathlon, the all-around contest at the relay championships at Franklin Field. This chap is only 19 years old. He weighs 155 pounds and is rather small, being only five feet eight and a half inches in height, but despite his youth and small build he out-sped, out-jumped and out-threw a quintet of opponents, every one of whom was a giant in comparison.

The pentathlon contest is made up of five events—the running broad jump, 200-meter run, throwing the javelin, throwing the discus and 1600-meter run. Opposing Berry were Harry Worthington of Dartmouth, a big fellow, who went to the last Olympic games as America's best jumper; L. Lamb of Penn State, who resembles the powerful Martin Sheridan; J. Smith of Franklin, and Marshall, at least twenty pounds heavier than Berry; McMasters of Pittsburg, who might be taken for guard on one of that institution's champion football teams, and W. Creighton, a Penn man, who hereafter will devote his athletic activities to the football team and strength tests.

How Pentathlon Was Won.

The running broad jump was the first event of this contest decided. Its first honors went to Worthington, with McMasters second and Berry third. Throwing the javelin came next, and with it a victory for Berry. In the next two—the 200-meter dash and throwing the discus—he finished second in each, and in the final event, the 1600-meter run, he outsped his opponents all the way and earned another first place. With two victories, two seconds and one third, his point score tallied only 9.

Worthington excelled in two of the events, the jump and the dash, but fell down badly in the javelin and discus, finishing last in the former and fifth in the latter. His score was 15 points. In the distance run he was second. McMasters gave the Dartmouth star a hard fight for second honors, scoring only 16 points. Lamb was fourth, with 17; Creighton fifth, with 21, and Smith last, with 26.

The points were scored according to the cross-country system, the contestant having the smallest number of points being declared the victor.

Newark is the champion slugging aggregation in Gilmore's league. The charges of Bill Phillips have cracked out 21 doubles, 11 triples and one home run this year. Against this the Terriers own four doubles, six triples and one circuit smash.

Gene Dale, St. Louis Boy, Pitches Good Ball for the Cincinnati Reds

GENE DALE, the St. Louis boy, who was formerly a member of the Red Sox, but who is now a member of the Cincinnati Reds, helped to pitch his team to victory over the Pirates. Schneider started in the box for Herzog's squad, but with the score 2—0 in favor of the Reds, Schneider was relieved by Dale, the Pirates getting but two hits off him in 4 2-3 innings. Errors by Viox at third and Cooper, who was on the mound for the Pirates, were responsible for the Reds' winning run in the third.

A single and an error by Groh in the eighth inning gave the Pirates their only run. Olson, at second for the Reds, batted 1.000 for the day, with three hits out of as many trips to the plate.

All three of the local teams occupy seventh place in the standings this morning. Both the Cardinals and the Browns have won three and lost seven for an average of .300, while the Terriers have the "highest" average of the three teams, with three games won and six lost, for an average of .333. Incidentally the Terriers are tied with Baltimore for last place, and a defeat of the Terriers today may mean last place.

Remember Art Griggs, the former Brownie first-sacker? One seldom sees his name in the box score any more. But Griggs, who is now one of Manager Magee's helpmates at Brooklyn, came through with a single in the game with Newark, batting for Reed in the seventh.

Vin Campbell, the St. Louis boy, got three hits out of four, while Frank Laporte, ex-Brownie, and our old comedian friend, Steve Evans, got three out of four. Both Evans and Laporte had a two-base hit among their collection, while Laporte was robbed of a homer when a bleacherite in the left-field stands at Newark knocked Frank's drive out when it was sailing into the stands.

Bobby Veach, the nifty fly-chaser of the Tigers, continues to keep up his hitting, he getting three wallops out of five trips to the plate, one a two-base smash, while Tyrus Raymond Cobb was satisfied with one out of five, the Tigers winning from the Indians, 8—4.

The Phillies, who were doomed to second division by the critics, are keeping up their winning streak, taking the world's champion Braves into camp, 2—1. George Whitted, who was a member of the Braves last season, started the scoring against his old teammates in the second inning. Whitted singled, Bert Neihoff doubled, and Luderus's two-base smash scored the two runs for the Phillies. Besides being instrumental in the scoring of the winning runs, Whitted had a perfect day at bat, getting three hits out of as many times to the bat.

Mickey Doolan's home run broke Buffalo's winning streak. Doolan was the star for Baltimore in the hitting line, with three out of four. Artie Hofman led his teammates with three out of five. One of his hits was for three bases. Baltimore pounced on Woodman and Ford in the eighth inning and scored five runs before Gene Krapp, who came to the rescue, could stop the scoring, but Baltimore had scored enough to win, 6—5.

Derby Is Worth Ten Times Value It Was in 1875

Promoters Add $10,000 to Stake Where They Formerly Annexed Only $1000.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 24.—To look back from this year to 1875, when the first Kentucky Derby race was run at Churchill Downs, is to cover a period of 41 racing seasons, during which time the American turf has experienced many vicissitudes.

In many states legislation has driven racing to other scenes, and tracks that were never even dreamed of in the early '70s have been operated to replace plants which were laid out in the long ago and then regarded as impregnable as Gibraltar.

The 41 years' history of the Kentucky Derby has seen the coming and going of J. H. Haggin, who eclipsed all records as a breeder of thoroughbred horses, probably setting a mark in this respect for all time to come. It has also seen the abolition of such fashionable racing points as Jerome Park, Long Branch, Washington Park and Sheepshead Bay and the beginning and end of J. R. Keene's phenomenal career as a turfman.

Today the Kentucky Derby has no rival in this country and it has become as great in importance as its famous English namesake annually run off at Epsom Downs. The rich $15,000 turf prize, with its 68 entries from which to choose a field, will be run off this season on May 8.

The first Kentucky Derby had only $1000 added to the stake, a marked contrast to the event of today, when the added money is $10,000. When Aristides won the race the event was worth $2850 to the winner, the subscription to the first Derby being $50 pay or play.

Yeatman Wins Close Game.

By hitting Rehagen at opportune times the Yeatman High School baseball nine was able to land an 8—6 victory over the Central High team at Pastime Park, yesterday afternoon. Central played a ragged game in the field, being credited with seven marks in the error column. Connor Shanley, the Yeatman twirler, pitched splendidly in the pinches. An excellent crowd turned out and saw the novelty of a girl cheer leader leading the Central rooting forces.

PIKERS MEET McKENDREE ON DIAMOND AND TRACK

McKendree College of Lebanon, Ill., will be entertained on both the diamond and the cinder track by Washington University athletes, this afternoon. The Piker track team will have its first opportunity of the year to show its merit, the McKendree meet being the first outside competition of the year. Coach Edmunds will have a full team entered in the meet, about 30 athletes performing in the various events.

The meet will be started at 2:00 o'clock in order that the baseball game might also be played on the campus. Hewitt and Lewis will perform as the maroon battery, while the other positions will be filled as they were in the opening game last week.

Balk Rule to Be Enforced.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Strict enforcement of the balk rule has been ordered in the American League, according to a story published here today and quoting Umpire O'Loughlin. The recent performance of Pitcher Scott of Chicago in catching three St. Louis runners off first base resulted in complaints that his deceptive motion really violated the balk rules.

On President Johnson's instruction, O'Loughlin enforced the rule rigidly when Scott trapped Cobb in a game at Detroit, and permitted the Detroit runners to advance. Fear that liberal interpretation of the rule might stop a good deal of spectacular base running resulted in the order, according to O'Loughlin. The story says Owner Comiskey and others are likely to oppose the strict ruling.

C. B. C. DEFEATS NORMALS

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., April 24.—Christian Brothers' College nine defeated the Cape Normals here yesterday, 8—3. Blair started on the hill for the Brothers and allowed but two hits in the five innings that he was on duty. In the sixth inning he was injured by a pitched ball and gave way to Brown, who held the Normals safe for the rest of the game. The Normals scored their three runs on errors in the second inning. Three pitchers were used by the locals in an effort to stop the C. B. C. nine.

HIGH BOWLING SCORES

Some good scores were made in the city handicap bowling tournament last night. Bieger-Bambach and J. B. Curran were the high men in the tournament. Bieger and Bambach rolled into fourth place when they toppled 1064 pins with a handicap of 174 for a total of 1238. Curran went to fifth place in the singles when he made a scratch score of 638.

George Burns, who last year topped the senior circuit in stolen bases has failed to pilfer a sack this year. Snodgrass, another Giant, with four is at present the leader.

POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

NEW YORK, April 24.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Possibly because a strong 'week-end closing' is considered to be effective in drawing the outside public's orders, today was marked by a number of sharp advances on the Stock Exchange.

"Much of the market's attention was paid to scattered industrial stocks, in which there occurred a few advances of 4 or 5 points, but many of the standard shares also rose a point or more. The movement had no relation to anything in the news or rumor.

"Discussion of the uncertain position of two hard-luck western railways, which may be a topic of next week, was neglected as out of the spirit of the day. Interborough Metropolitan shares reflected distaste of the plan for refinancing.

Exports Are Large.

"The Government today published the detailed figures of last month's agricultural exports. They throw a still more interesting light on the March foreign trade results, because, when agricultural shipments are deducted from the total outward movement, it appears that the non-agricultural exports of last month exceeded those of February by $30,700,000. This must reflect the war orders; especially since shipments of other than farm products during February increased only $29,000,000 from last year, whereas in March the increase over 1914 was $58,500,000. As for last month's breadstuffs exports, they break all monthly records except for February.

"The bank statement showed the expected large gain in cash holdings, due both to the week's gold import from Ottawa and the currency sent from the interior. In the actual week-end showing, the banks reported an increase of $12,300,000 cash in their own vaults and $2,900,000 in other depositories. This increase so far offset a $10,200,000 loan expansion as to add $12,900,000 to the surplus reserve."

LIVESTOCK.

	Today.	Week Ago.	Year Ago.
Cattle	700	300	175
Hogs	3,200	3,600	2,500
Sheep			750
Horses and mules	400	900	100

CATTLE—Receipts today totaled 50 head, a light supply. For the entire week the combined run has fallen short of 10,000 head. Farmers are so busy planting corn that they have no time to ship stock to market. Reports indicate that the Missouri corn crop will be planted perhaps a full two weeks earlier than usual, owing to highly favorable weather of late. All fat cattle have sold very well this week, yearlings touching $8.85 and strictly prime stock would have brought more than that figure.

HOGS—The supply was small, and as the demand was good prices were 5@10c higher, and it was a good, active trade. The top was $7.85, the highest of the year, and the bulk went at $7.65@7.80. Best grades went at $7.75 and upwards, while the mixed and plain offerings sold at $7.50@7.70 and the throwout rough packers, $7@7.25. Best lights found sale at $7.50@7.75, fair grades $7.25@7.50, best pigs went at $7.10@7.40, fair $6.50@7 and poor grades $5.50@6.25.

SHEEP—The market was quiet, with lambs worth up to $10.75, sheep $8.25 and bucks $7.

HORSES AND MULES.

Mule trade was rather quiet and there was practically no life whatever displayed. Market was purely nominal.

Wheat futures were firm and nearly 1c higher on the Merchants' Exchange today, largely on spot wheat, ½d higher in Liverpool, and reports that foreigners were buying the distant options in the Chicago market. Expectations of a big decrease in the visible supply on Monday also helped the buyers. Heavy buyink on export h. CatesKr%g-famY.'IGo;No%;. nryUN business carried prices up with a rush in the closing hour and prices averaged nearly 3c above yesterday's closing. The market finished at the top.

Weather was ideal for the growing winter wheat crop, and North Dakota, which has been in need of rain, reported good precipitation. The trade, however, believes the present condition too high to last, and expects minor deterioration from now forward.

Minneapolis wheat cars totaled 201, against 64 last week and 176 last year. Duluth 25, against 32 and 8. Winnipeg 96, against 171 and 125. Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 150,000 bu for 1 day.

Total primary wheat receipts were 692,000 bu, against 423,000 bu last year. Shipments, 1,016,000 bu, against 332,000 bu.

Local wheat receipts totaled 42,099 bu, against 42,000 bu last year. Shipments, 40,000 bu, against 51,000 bu.

Corn futures were steady. Spot corn was 1d to 2½d higher in Liverpool and Broomhall reported an urgent demand. Total primary receipts were 509,000 bu against 315,000 bu last year, but shipments totaled 856,000 bu against 759,000 bu. Weather was favorable for preparation of the new crop. Local receipts were 175,000 bu against 118,000 bu last year. Shipments 35,000 bu against 39,000 bu. Corn closed firm at sharp fractional gains.

The weather forecast said: "The warm wave will continue without material change for several days longer throughout this forecast district, and the weather will be generally fair, although a few scattered showers in the West are probable."

Russell's New York News says: "The acreage of winter wheat in the contending countries of Europe is ordinarily about 65,000,000 acres, and a reduction of 15 per cent in this acreage would offset the increase in other countries. Most of the decrease in the acreage is believed to be in France, Austria-Hungary and Servia. Of 240,000,000 acres of wheat in the world about 85,000,000 to 90,000,000 acres are spring wheat, Russia sowing about 60,000,000 acres, United States 20,000,000 and Canada 10,000,000. While no definite figures are available, present indications do not point to the heavy increases in the world's acreage that was at one time anticipated."

The decrease in Duluth stocks of wheat this week is expected to be between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 bu.

The monthly agriculture report shows average prices of farm product of 7.5 per cent higher than those of a year ago.

The Farmers' Bulletin, just issued at Washington, states that the sowing of winter wheat in the Northern Hemisphere outside of the countries in Europe at war, and including British India, shows an increase of 8,500,000 acres this year.

Winnipeg wired:

"Wheat seeding over Canadian prairie provinces is estimated to be from 80 to 90 per cent completed, according to the reports from all parts of the West sent to the three big milling companies here. There is some apprehension, though, of the fear that dry weather may continue too long. In many places soil is getting quite dry. But even here the subsoil is reported to have plenty of moisture to germinate the seed. Light rains were reported in parts of Manitoba the last two days.

"The Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture in its first report on the crop says satisfactory conditions are indicated. The early spring, the large acreage of fall plowing and ideal conditions for planting, indicate that a large wheat crop will be sowed in record time.

"The acreage of grain crops will not be finally estimated until June, but the preliminary report indicates a possible increase of 3,000,000 acres in the wheat area."

Minneapolis wired:

"The increase in the wheat receipts here today are at the expense of the country elevator stocks. Country receipts are only a little better."

Talk from the Seaboard was that 650,000 bu of wheat were worked for export since the close yesterday.

Clearances: Wheat, 893,000 bu; flour, 3000 bu; wheat and flour, 817,000 bu; corn, 297,000 bu; oats, 895,000 bu.

FOREIGN BUYING CAUSES A FIRM TONE IN WHEAT

CHICAGO, April 24.—Wheat prices advanced today in response to continued strength at Liverpool, where offerings were said to be light and the demand increasingly urgent. Considerable interest was also taken in Buenos Aires advices telling of heavy speculative buying, diminishing receipts and of broadening export call.

Word that the ice was breaking up at Archangel and promising an outlet for Russian wheat seemed to make no impression. After opening ¼c off to ½c up, the market scored material gains all around.

Corn bulged with wheat, and as a result of incessant damaging rains in Argentina. Selling was only scattered. The opening, which varied from ¼c to ⅝c higher, was followed by additional upturns.

Active buying of September oats tended to lift other months. The bulls were chiefly pit speculators.

Confirmation of good sales today of new crop winter wheat for export had a further strengthening influence. The close was strong, 1⅝c to 2⅝c above last night.

No important reaction in corn took place. The close was firm at ⅝c to ¾c net advance.

SPICE OF LIFE.

Couldn't Fool Him.—Coming fresh from the country a youth had just procured a position in a city grocery. As he had been warned that the city folks would "josh" him because he was from the country, he was very cautious. One afternoon a girl entered the store and said: "I should like to get some bird seed, please."

THE WILD BIRD.

A WILD bird came to my garden wall,
On her head was a golden cap,
A wild bird's song she sang to me,
And a feather she flung in my lap.

Come and live with me, I said to the bird,
Sing not to the woods alone,
Come build your nest in my hawthorn bush,
And make my heart your home.

I love the woods, said the wild bird,
And the temples built for me,
I love to hear the rhythmic song,
Of the brooks as they go to the sea.

When their limbs are bare to the bone,
For I know that God is listening,
Though I'm singing all alone.

The leaves, she said, are my curtain green,
And my door is never latched,
The moon is my silent watchman
And with stars my roof is thatched.

So the bird flew away to the lonely woods,
But her charm did not depart;
I lost the plume she flung to me,
But her song is in my heart.

From "A Book of Common Verse," by Albert L. Berry. (Post Print Shop, Chicago.)

CONQUERING AMERICA.

IT is the fashion, in literary circles, since the Great War, to conquer America in "Battle of Dorking" style, brought up to date, of course, with modern weapons and embellished with horrors such as were undreamed of in Napoleon's days.

Cleveland Moffett, for instance, in McClure's Magazine, is giving us a fine forecast of America conquered by the Germans. And J. U. Giesy, whose book is published by the MacAulay Co. of New York, gives us a somewhat similar forecast in "All For His Country," in which the invaders are Japanese. Both stories are made in the highest degree plausible. Moffett tells how the Panama Canal is crippled and the U. S. fleet bottled up in the Pacific while a German fleet attacks New York and lands an army. Prophet Giesy does not bother with the canal, but pictures the Japs suddenly capturing San Francisco and the other Pacific Coast cities by a clever ruse, effected in the same manner at the various points attacked. The wreck of New York with its accompanying slaughter of thousands of citizens, is strikingly similar in both stories. Moffett uses Germany as the aggressor, but leaves it to the reader to substitute any strong nation which he may imagine has designs on this country.

In Giesy's romance, the American Government is manned by leaders whose names are a thin disguise for those of the present Wilson administration, Bryan, under the name Ryan, being a peace advocate, refusing to become alarmed until it is proven that the worst has happened. There is also a clever picture of a big politician who persistently hampers all preparations for defense unless his clique can reap a financial harvest from the nation's sufferings.

The war surprise of the German monster siege guns is used to point the warning that, in addition to our unpreparedness against ordinary war methods, we might be temporarily paralyzed, as was Belgium, with some frightful new weapon sprung on us by an invading force.

All of which makes good reading these days. The "Battle of Dorking" did not come off as its author pictured, but the European war is worse than anything he then conceived. We refuse to be alarmed, and in some ways these prophetically worded war romances are even a little amusing. But the unexpected does happen. And our national leaders will do well not to feel that we are immune to attack. The conquest of America might be impossible, but untold damage to American interests and terrible loss of American life is quite conceivable, if we continue to live in a fool's paradise.

TALES OF THE ORIENT.

TALES of the real Orient permeated with incense and malaria are told by James Francis Dwyer in a collection of short stories, under the title of "Breath of the Jungle." There are about a dozen narratives, most of them told by a German naturalist in Borneo. The stories are all incredible, but the author takes pains to impress you with the fact that anything can happen after you are once on the other side of Bab-El-Mandeb. One of the stories, "The Three Who Fled," is a real masterpiece. The other tales are all well told and absorbing in interest, though unconvincing to the practical mind of the Occident. (A. C. McClurg.)

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A BOOK TO SIT UP WITH.

EUTHANASIA plus amnesia, is the formula of the plot in "The Keeper of the Door," by Ethel M. Dell, the English writer whom some critics are nowadays calling a new Marie Corelli.

By this formula, Miss Dell has produced a novel which is no sort of a book for a man to take home to his wife. She will sit up so late over the story that the chances for a timely breakfast the next morning are minute.

There is an oldtime villain in this book. He tells the story that causes the shock that causes the madness that makes one of the characters an inviting subject for euthanasia. As "euthanasia" is not in the 79-cent dictionaries, and as it is some time since the women's clubs discussed this subject on the first pages of the newspapers, a definition may be helpful at this point. Euthanasia is the surreptitious practice of putting sick persons out of their supposed misery, with the usual result of putting surviving persons into unmistakable misery.

In this case, the young woman who gave her demented friend a free pass to the hereafter became ill from brain fever immediately afterward, and when she recovered had conveniently forgotten her act. This is the amnesia part. It is also the old-fashioned villain's cue to try to place the blame for the insane woman's death on a young physician, fiance of the amnesiac. With her convenient loss of memory, she has also lost her ideas about euthanasia, and when her finace is accused of doing such a thing, she drops him and becomes engaged to the villain.

Boom! This loud sound is the explosion of a bomb. Gr-r-r! Gangway! That is a man-eating tiger galloping out of the jungle—for the scene has now shifted to India. If it is all the same to the reader, the attempt to describe this story will be terminated at this point. Full particulars of the bomb, the tiger and other things which space forbids, etc., etc., will be found in the book itself. (Putnams.)

GERMAN FAMILY LIFE.

THE "Sons of the Rhine," who form the subject of Rudolph Herzog's story with that title translated by Louise T. Lazell, are the six Wiskottens of the Wupper valley whose father was the founder of the Wiskotten ribbon factory and whose mother was the force that bound them all together as "the family" in the working out of their great ambitions.

They are a sturdy six and in telling the story of their struggles Herzog, who is said to be in the front rank of popular German novelists, presents an illuminating and pleasing picture of German industrial and family life as it was before the coming of war.

The six Wiskottens were not at all times united in the work of building up the Wiskotten fortunes. One of the six was an artist who would not be bound down to the grind of the factory. Not at first. But after he had wooed high art and been flaunted he concluded that utilitarian art was not to be despised and joined with his brothers in achieving their greatest success.

There is a lesson learned by the wife of one of the Wiskottens which other wives might learn to their advantage and to the diminishment of domestic infelicity, the lesson that husbands can be held by the same arts with which lovers are won.

The work of translation is good in that the spirit of the original is preserved, but the translator is not always happy in her choice of English to express the aptness and robustness of German colloquial discourse. (Desmond FitzGerald.)

JULES VERNE REDIVIVUS.

A TUNNEL 3000 miles long, under the Atlantic Ocean connecting New York with a point in France of the Bay of Biscay is constructed by Bernard Kellerman in "The Tunnel," a story which ran serially some years ago and is now brought out in book form probably because of the wa[r]. The style of the author remi[nds] ternately of Jules Verne a[nd] Wells. Kellerman succeeds [in making] the Tunnel a real thing with word painting and gift of onom[atopoeia] description. There are a few [unfortu]nate references in the book, which [was] projected to 1950, to the fact that Europe had been at peace for a hundred years and that the tunnel across the channel had been built because Germany, France and England had no fear of each other. The author should have revised his book in view of the Aug. 1, 1914, unpleasantness. (Macauley.)

A STORY OF THE "WILD WEST."

"THE BOSS OF THE LAZY Y," by Charles Alden Seltzer, is another of the hundred books that have been recently written concerning ranch life in the West. Ranches are rapidly dying out in the West, but stories about them are increasing in inverse ratio. Whenever a real cowboy becomes a real estate agent, two are born with chaps and gunfire in the pages of fiction. Seltzer's story is about the usual kind of modern Wild West story. The cowboy hero goes through a flock of adventures defending his "boss," who is the pretty girl owner of the ranch. There is the usual amount of gun play and the usual ending. The story neither lowers nor elevates the standard of Wild West sagas. (A. C. McClurg.)

BELGIUM PAST AND PRESENT.

TWO books on Belgium, written for American boys, have appeared within a week. "When I Was a Boy in Belgium," by Robert Jonckheere, is the sixth volume in the "When I Was a Boy" series, published by Lothrop, Lee & Shepard. "Pierrot, Dog of Belgium," by Walter A. Dyer, is published by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Jonckheere, a Belgian refugee, has embodied in his story the things which he learned, as a boy, of the stirring history of his country, the pursuits of Belgian boys, and the situation which Belgian boys, with their parents, have been facing in the past eight months. It is amply illustrated.

The story of Pierrot tells how one of Belgium's famed and useful dogs of peace became even more famous and useful as a veritable dog of war, harnessed to a machine gun. The covers of both books are in the vivid colors of Belgium.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCardell.

Mr. Jarr Decides That a Double Chin Is Liable to Go With a Double Face.

"YOU were talking about worrying the other day. At least you were saying what was the use to worry about worry," said Mr. Jarr, as he settled himself to read how the ball teams were coming along. "I've been thinking about what you said, and I've come to the conclusion you are right."

"I only know worrying brings wrinkles, especially if one is thin," replied Mrs. Jarr. "Yet Shakspeare said 'Fat Is Fatal to Youth and Beauty.'"

"Why, no, I do not remember it as being among Mr. Shakspeare's justly celebrated quotations," replied Mr. Jarr.

"But we were not talking about fat. We were talking about worrying."

"Yes, I know," said Mrs. Jarr. "But if you worry you don't get fat, and yet if you worry to keep thin you get wrinkles."

"Oh, I don't know about worrying and keeping thin," mused Mr. Jarr, half to himself. "That's another one of those fallacies concerning fat people. I know some fat people who are the greatest of fretters. Then, it is popularly supposed that fat people are good hearted and lovable. I've known some fat guys—beg pardon, I have known some stout men—who were the meanest, slyest, crookedest, most deceitful highbinders. Talk of being two faced! Come to think of it, a lot of fat people are not only double-chinned, but are two-faced as well."

"Well, I am sure I would worry. If I were getting stout, and when you worry it affects your disposition. So if fat people are often deceitful who can blame them?" Mrs. Jarr, replied. "What is it that Shakspeare or Byron says: 'The fat are getting fatter, the poor are getting poorer, the rich are getting richer, the old are getting older'——

"My gracious!" interrupted Mr. Jarr. "From what source do you obtain your authorities? Shakspeare and Byron, indeed! Why, you must draw your literary inspirations from promoters' circulars and street car advertisements. I'd hate to look like the men on those ads."

"I dare say!" cried Mrs. Jarr. "And it is no wonder I have the trouble with our Willie I do. He won't wash his neck, and he hates the very sight of little Lionel Pynkefinger, and attacks the child every time he sees him on the way with his music roll going to take his piano lessons."

"Bully for—— I mean our Willie shouldn't do that," said Mr. Jarr. "But we get off the subject. We are talking about worrying."

"You were rude to me when I was quoting from the poets," remarked Mrs. Jarr. "So, I should worry."

"You should worry, is right," declared Mr. Jarr. "I should worry that I should worry, too. Worry is thinking about something that's GOING to happen, and then you worry because it doesn't. Worry is hope turned inside out.

"We sit down and worry about what will happen after we are dead, and we are not dead yet. We worry about the note that is coming due, and it isn't due yet. We worry about losing our job, and we haven't lost it.

"We do die and nobody worries about it and neither do we. The note comes due and we pay it, get it extended or let it go to protest, and the world wags on just the same. We lose the job and maybe get a better one—anyway we quit worrying about the chances of losing it after it is lost."

"Well, I'm glad to hear you say so!" said Mrs. Jarr. "But you'd better be careful about how you speak of fat not necessarily indicating a lovely disposition, hem!"

"Oh, never mind me!" said Mr. Jarr. "I don't weigh a bit more than I did a year ago!"

MR. PIPKIN: According to this paper a man has lived a year on beer alone.

Mrs. Pipkin: Well, any man who lives on beer should be compelled to live alone.

A Hard Try.

Petticoat Diplomacy.

"Well, Madge, did the boss fire you for gittin down late again this morning? You know what he said the last time?"

"No, tee hee! I had just opened the morning's mail with enough orders in it to sink a battleship, and as he said, 'Miss Brown, you're late again,' I put it down before him."

Two of a Kind.

MY dear Mrs. Gadsby, I'm so glad to see you. What is the latest gossip?"

"My dear, that is just what I called to find out."

In Position.

"How's business? Looking up?"

"I guess so. It's flat on its back."

Same as Anybody Else.

His Large Family.

WILLIS: I'm glad I haven't as large a family as Hawkins has.

Wallace: Why, he has only a wife.

"Yes, I know; but she weighs 250 pounds!"

Playing It Carefully.

TENDERLY the ardent swain placed the diamond circlet on his lady love's finger. "It seals our engagement," he said.

"And now," continued the young man, "would you mind giving me a receipt, stating that the ring is to be returned to me in case you should change your mind about marrying me?"

Forty Minutes Out.

HOW far out do you live, old man?" "Well, it's 20 minutes from my station to the city if the train is on time, and 20 minutes from my house to the station if I'm on time."

Cautious Buyer.

MY wife sent me to buy a rolling pin," said the mild-looking man. "What kind of wood do you prefer?" inquired the salesman.

"What is the softest wood you have?"

He Knew, Didn't He?

SOMETHING in haberdashery, please, for a young man of 22," said the shy young girl.

Or an Auctioneer.

"Yes, but I'm not raising my boy to be an announcer."

Non-Alcoholic.

PLEASE, lady," begged the wayfarer, "could you give a poor, starving man a bite to eat?"

"No," snapped the lady. "I don't believe in helping disreputable vagabonds like you. Besides, from the smell of your breath, I have every reason to believe you are drunk.'"

"Maybe I am, lady," replied the tramp. "But do you really believe a couple of slices of bread would make me any drunker?"

No Difference, Sister.

IS your husband a domesticated man?"

"I suppose you'd call him one. The fact that he was born in Montreal wouldn't make any great difference."

Both Halves.

I GIVE my wife half my salary every week to spend on the housekeeping and herself."

Better Unsaid.

WHAT do you think of my new gloves?"

"They're immense."
